HORST CHILD DEAD, NEW CLUE HINTS

Today

Hard for Robots and Men.
Now for the Pacific.
We Need Submarines.
The Feast at Las Cruces.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

SCIENCE piles prodigy on prodigy, miracle on miracle, so rapidly, that it tires the average brain.

Professor Partridge, only 26 years old, in New York University chemistry department can manufacture lithium at $15 a pound. A little while ago you couldn't have got a pound for a million dollars. Lithium is a metal so light that it floats even on kerosene.

PROFESSOR M'TAVISH, of New York University, demonstrates a robot, a mechanical man, with an electric lamp in place of eyes, a radio tube in place of a brain, relays and magnets for hand.

However, it can be shown that no robot can ever develop any new idea.

He who wishes to avoid robot competition, should devote himself to developing new ideas, and working them out.

FROM Seattle the Pacific Aeronautic Research Foundation plans for next May a non-stop flight across the Pacific.

Men have flown from Europe to South America, from London to India, across the Atlantic repeatedly, over the North and South Poles.

The Pacific alone remains to be conquered.

And only a few years ago Lord Northcliffe offered $50,000 to any one that would fly the English Channel.

THE Brooklyn Navy Yard starts work on a new submarine, the V-7, keeping at work 725 men that would have been discharged. This encourages the people to think we may have some intelligent interest in national defense submarines, which with modern engines can go around the world without taking fuel, traveling on the surface, as they do in peace.

A good fleet of really big submarines, with heavy guns, knocked down fighting planes, high speed and long sailing range, would do a great deal for peace, if they could be sent to visit every important port in the world.

Those well prepared have peace. The unprepared have war.

THE feast of the Virgin of Guadalupe, at Las Cruces, Mexico, witnesses interesting scenes around the sacred shrine. Many of the devout traveled to the shrine, a distance of four miles, on their hands and knees, believing that this would add efficacy to their prayers.

In the Church of Spain thousands of women have crawled from the front door to the high altar, licking the dust from the floor with their tongues as they advanced. Their prayer was to be delivered from barrenness.

The enlightened clergy of today does not encourage these practices, and positively forbids the religious excesses of Mexican Indian converts that lash and even crucify themselves.

It is difficult to convince the ignorant and superstitious that divinity does not enjoy human suffering.

At Las Cruces, for the first time in three years, Mexican Catholic priests were allowed to officiate at the shrine in public. The crowd of 200,000 worshippers, largely Indians, was a demonstration of gratitude for the better relations between church and state.

According to Associated Press dispatches the Indians mixed ancient Aztec religious rites with their Christian worship.

THREE years ago Pennsylvania had a senatorial election. Candidates spent $2,500,000 on the election. Mr. Vare won, spending about $700,000 for his election expenses, and the Senate threw him out.

Now, Pennsylvania's Governor appoints a distinguished lobbyist and business man to the vacant Senate seat and the Senate accepts him with a few unkind words from radicals. That might be called a joke on the men that spent $2,500,000 and on the state of Pennsylvania.

THE trust idea spreads. German workers, scattered through the Black Forest, have formed a combination to keep up the price of cuckoo clocks and stop harsh competition. They promise to make better and brighter cuckoos, and not raise prices much.

Russia appropriates $420,000,000 real money to promote farm prosperity and production. Russia had built tractor factories capable of producing two and a half times as many tractors as this country built last year. And now Russia will build a factory able to produce five times as many tractors as Russia produced last year.

John Calder, American engineer, says:

"Russia puts up steel faster than anything I have known in America."

Here we make the farmers pay freight on 2,000 pounds to get 400 pounds of real fertilizer. Russia will not do that. When the dust settles, you will find the Muscle Shoals power plant, built by the people paid for by them, and able to produce unlimited cheap fertilizer, turned over to private exploitation.

The Russians would not do that. They would work the plant for the people, that paid for it. Primitive people, those Bolsheviki, completely ignorant of American methods.

RAMSAY MACDONALD says Britain is not arming against any nation in particular, certainly not against this country. Britain is arming determined to be prepared. Just in case anybody should come along. Wise British, they prepare while we talk.

SENATE TO PASS TAX SLASH

Leaders Rally Votes to Rush Through Measure Carrying Reduction of $160,000,000

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The American people were assured a $160,000,000 tax reduction gift for Christmas when Senate leaders agreed today to pass the administration's measure before nightfall.

Three proposals to amend were pending, but administration leaders were rallying votes to prevent their adoption because any change in the resolution will necessitate its return to the House. If passed by the Senate in its present form the measure will go direct to the White House for President Hoover's approval. In either event the taxpaying public will get its tax reduction gift before Christmas, although federal taxes will not be due until next March 15.

The Senate already has rejected one of the pending proposals, the McMaster plan to use $150,000,000 to reduce freight rates on wheat, cattle and other farm products. This proposal, entirely eliminating tax reduction, was rejected by a vote of 60 to 12. Seven Republicans—Blaine, Brookhart, Frazier, Howell, McMaster, Nojbeck and Nye—and five Democrats—Blease, Harris, Heflin, Sheppard and Smith—voted for it.

URGES FUNDS FOR ROADS

Senator McMaster (Rep.), of South Dakota, its author, sponsored his plan again as an amendment to the bill. Its rejection was assured, since in its new form it would provide for tax reduction as well as a slash in freight rates on farm products.

A second substitute proposal, suggested by Senator Thomas

CARNEGIE TECH PRIMED FOR COAST GAME

Red Kennedy Picked to Start For Plaid If Foe Kicks Off; 50,000 Crowd Expected

By JESS CARVER,
Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—Three thousand miles from home, the plaid-clad warriors of Carnegie Tech will carry the hopes and fear of the East into intersectional warfare against Southern California in the Coliseum here this afternoon.

Their long journey from Pittsburgh to this garden spot ended and with designs of an attack by air well formulated, Tech hopes to come through with a victory today over the powerful Trojans, which will be all the more brilliant by virtue of the fact that it is seldom that Eastern elevens are able to win here on the coast.

HEAT TO HANDICAP TECH

The stage is set, it would seem, for a Trojan holiday, despite the sincere respect which has been established in California minds for Tech's passing game. It is going to be a warm day, and the rarified air of the west, with the heat, is figured to slow down the Tartans.

Besides, Southern California, although beaten by California and Notre Dame, has a powerful attack, almost certain to eventually crash through.

BOY'S GRAVE BELIEVED LOCATED

Long Missing Lad Reported Killed by Hit-Run Auto And Body Secretly Buried

WOOSTER, O., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The year-long search for little Melvin Horst reached its bitterest point today as residents of the village of Orrville, plunged overnight from high hopes to grim despair, fearfully awaited the investigation of a report that the child is dead.

There have been nearly a thousand other "clues" which vanished into nothingness since almost all of Orrville's 4,000 inhabitants turned out to search for the chubby, four-year-old child when he disappeared last December 27, but this time Special Prosecutor Walter J. Mougey feared he would find the boy dead.

BELIEVED HIT BY CAR

The story, given him from "reliable sources," Mougey said, was that Melvin had been killed by a youthful hit-skip driver the day he failed to return home, and late that night was buried a mile from the village.

The information came by way of a Northeastern Ohio business man, located 50 miles from here, according to Mougey. The hit-skip driver was driven by his conscience to tell the business man of Melvin's fate only a few days ago. The motorist, a young man, said he was afraid of being prosecuted for murder, so the story ran.

Unlike countless other "revelations" of what became of Melvin, however, this report seemed to Mougey to bear the stamp of truth.

TO POINT OUT GRAVE

Today, the business man and the youth who made the confession were to come here, tell their stories to Mougey, and then lead the way to the grave. The morning wore on, however, without the two making their promised appearance. Mougey announced that he would make no promise of immunity to the youth.

The report of Melvin's death last night heightened the tenseness that has prevailed among Orrville residents since Thursday night, but it was a startlingly different emotion. Thursday night the residents had abandoned their streets to offer an anonymous letter writer every opportunity to keep his promise of delivering the boy safely home if he were not molested. Even last night, until the ominous rumor of Melvin's death, groups collected to speculate on the possibility of the letter writer returning the boy when the excitement has calmed.

At Melvin's home, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Horst, turned eyes hollow from two nights of vigil toward a withered, brown Christmas tree in the corner of the living room. They placed it there, green and adorned, a year ago. They said it would not be taken out until Melvin is found.

PARMELEE BUYS GREEN CAB

The Parmelee Transportation Company has bought control of the Pittsburgh Transportation Company, which operates Green Cabs.

Paul Houston, president of the Pittsburgh Transportation Company, admitted the sale today after first denying the transaction.

The sale gives Parmelee a voice in the operation of the two biggest taxicab companies in Pittsburgh. Several months ago Parmelee, which has transportation interests in Chicago, New York and other cities, acquired part ownership of Yellow Cab Company in Pittsburgh.

Houston said that Parmelee had paid $875,000 for its stock in the company. The deal was negotiated on November 1 and was revealed today with Parmelee's report of the purchase to the New York Stock Exchange.

Houston emphasized that there will be no change in the personnel of the company, that he will continue as president; his brother, W. A. Houston, as vice president and secretary and another brother, J. H. Houston as vice president.

"The deal was made to promote efficiency in operation," Houston said.

GRUNDY AWAITS ASSIGNMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—A dozen choice Republican assignments on Senate committees will be awarded today by the Republican Committee on committees in the Senate.

While far more important assignments will be given to other senators, the greatest interest is attached to the appointments that will go to Senator Joseph R. Grundy, the so-called "granddaddy of all lobbyists" now safely enrolled as Pennsylvania's junior senator. Grundy in all probability will be placed on the Senate manufacturers' committee, because of his long experience in the manufacturing industry, and this will be his most important assignment.

Placing Grundy on the manufacturers' committee incidentally will bring him under the chairmanship of Senator "young Bob" LaFollette, an insurgent from Wisconsin, one of those states described by the Pennsylvanian as

Tugs Work to Free Ship Aground in Fog

GALVESTON, Tex., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Tugs today were working to free the Mallory 4,497-ton steamship Brazos, which grounded in 12 feet of water during a heavy fog over the channel here yesterday. The ship was inbound with a cargo from New York.

The captain, who was steering, failed to see a buoy near which the vessel grounded because of the dense fog. Tugs immediately were dispatched to the rescue.

SCREAMS BRING AID TO WOMAN

Screams of Mrs. Frances Oswald, 39, of 118 Brosville street, mother of three children, routed three men who annoyed her near her home early today, she reported to police.

Mrs. Oswald, employed at the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Station, had just left Mrs. Helen Ray, of 91 Brosville street, with whom she was returning home from work, when the men approached her at South Twelfth and Breed streets, she said.

One of them knocked her down. Her cries aroused her husband, John, who ran out of the house to her aid. The men fled.

Police later arrested two suspects, but Mrs. Oswald was unable to identify either and they were discharged.

FOG HIDES SHIP IN N.Y. HARBOR

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—The sun broke through the clouds today, dissipating a fog which had hung over the harbor and the metropolitan area for hours, delaying vessels and disrupting ferry schedules.

The fog played queer and costly pranks with shipping. It caused the Sound liner Lexington, with 150 passengers aboard, to crash into Pier 52, East River, after barely dodging a government dredge.

One of the biggest ocean greyhounds, the France, was lost in the fog early this morning and even though her wireless chattered, shipping men didn't know exactly where she was.

Old Sol's appearance ended virtually a week of fog. Ships came into New York harbor days late, due to fog and storm conditions on the ocean. The gale-tossed North German Lloyd liner Bremen arrived three days late after one of the most severe and hazardous Atlantic passages in the history of shipping. Seas of incredible force and hurricanes delayed the Bremen and were responsible for injuries to 10 passengers.

Suzanne Lenglen Working As Dress Shop Clerk

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Suzanne Lenglen, famous tennis star, is working as a saleswoman in a small dressmaking establishment here. Her job is selling, demonstrating and giving advice on sport clothes.

"I have always wanted to do this very thing," she said today.

"I adore clothes. I am through with tennis for the time being at least. I hope to make lots of money.

"Baldwin? Baldwin? Leave him out of this. He has nothing to do with it."

The latter remark was in answer to a question concerning the grandson of the E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin, to whom she has been reported engaged at various times.

Mlle. Lenglen is probably the highest paid saleswoman in the Paris shops. An outdoor salesroom and a combination tennis court and putting green are being fitted for her in the courtyard of the dressmaking establishment which once was the palace of Cardinal Fesch, the uncle of Napoleon.

At the establishment where Mlle Lenglen is employed it was said her new job was a first move to re-establish her in her amateur status which she forfeited in 1925 when she joined C. C. Pyle's professional tennis team.

Doll Lady Sends Aides To Nearby Towns

It makes me mighty happy to know that Pittsburgh's little girls and their parents have taken such a marked interest in my work and my wonderful dolls. Of course, you know that this doll speaks and sings, is as big as the ordinary 4 or 5-year-old girl, has beautiful eyes that open and shut and is prettily dressed. It is hard to believe that she actually sings songs you know and says her prayers, but it is true.

CIVIC LEADERS DRAFT PLANS TO AVERT CITY TAX RAISE

BUDGET HELP TO BE GIVEN COUNCIL

Offer of 200 Business Men Accepted; Rate of Levy To Be Fixed by Wednesday

Leading businessmen today are drafting advice requested by city Council to guide that body in avoiding a tax increase next year.

The levy will be fixed by next Wednesday, according to Councilman John S. Herron.

At a budget session yesterday Council adopted P. J. McArdle's motion to accept from the Building Owners and Managers' Association and the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board an offer of assistance.

MAYOR IN CONFERENCE

The offer was submitted by a committee selected from more than 200 business men that appeared before Council Thursday and predicted dire results from a rumored tax increase.

The committee included J. W. Bamford and P. H. Bailey, of the building owners' group; J. W. Cree, Jr., and E. F. Daume, for the realtors, and James Rea, for the Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor Kline, after declining yesterday to receive the full committee for a discussion of the tax problem, held a conference with Bamford. The latter said the Mayor explained that Council has sole authority to increase or reduce the city's estimated expenses as set up in the budget and to fix the tax rates.

INDUSTRY VIEWS

Thomas C. McMahon, chief of property assessors, declared manufacturers were favored here by escaping a tax on machinery, in sharp contrast to cities like Cleveland, Buffalo and Detroit.

New industries are kept out because owners of abandoned plants demand more than twice the market value of their sites when an out-of-town manufacturer becomes a prospective buyer of the property.

Manufacturers leave the city proper because their land becomes too valuable for occupancy by one-story plant structures, and land for imperative expansion can be bought cheaper in rural sections.

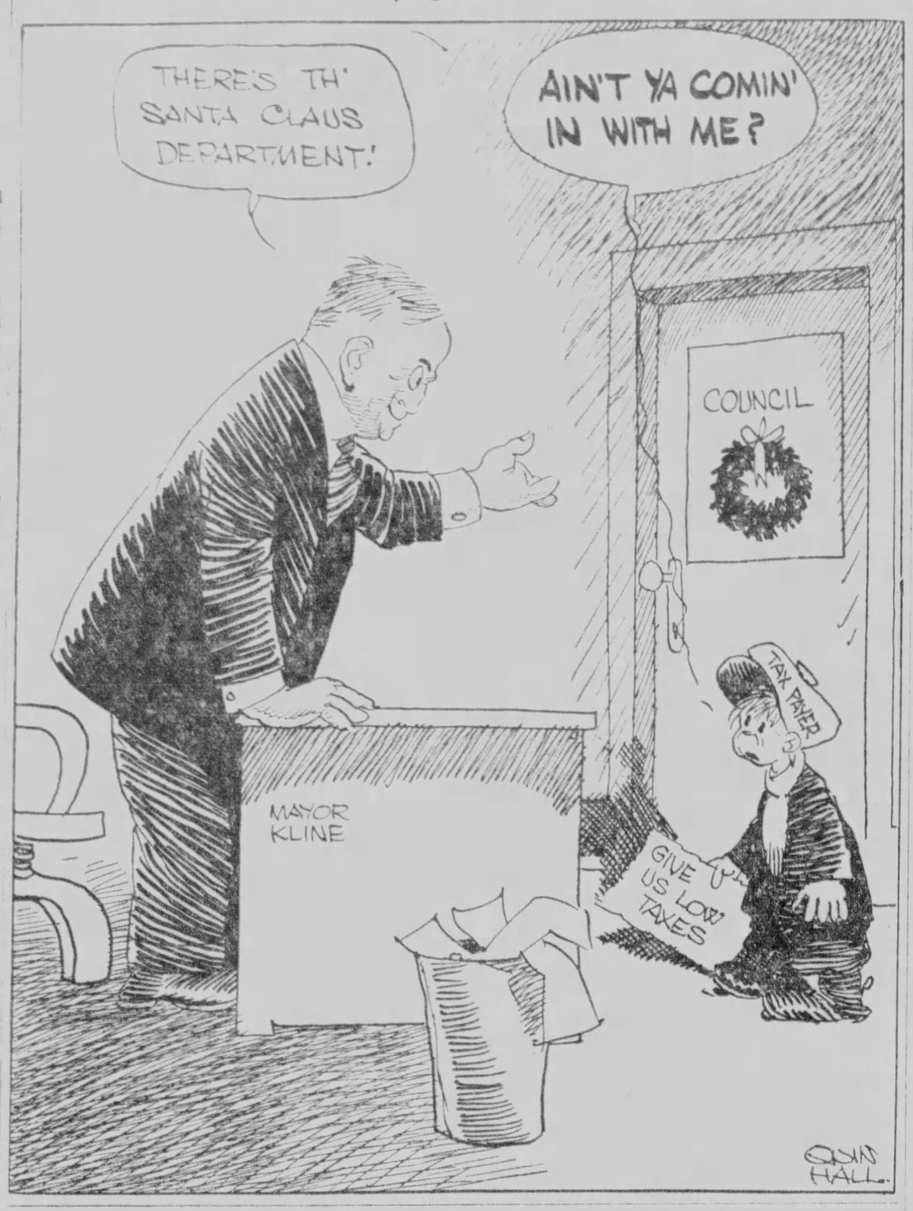
DIRECTION WITHOUT LEADERSHIP

By Quin Hall



SENATE TO ACT ON TAX CUT

(Dem.), of Oklahoma, would eliminate tax reduction and apply the $160,000,000 Treasury surplus to building good roads and public buildings. Thomas would use $100,000,000 on good roads and $60,000,000 on new federal buildings around the country. Both appropriations would be in addition to the regular sums allotted for both purposes by the budget.

The Thomas plan was certain to meet defeat, since administration leaders are committed to using the surplus for tax reduction. They also contended the regular appropriations for good roads and public buildings would take care of all the public work the government can afford at this time.

OTHER PLANS TO LOSE

An amendment by Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, would allow an additional $68,000,000 reduction in the tax on capital losses and gains from 12½ to 10 per cent. He would make this slash applicable in 1931 on the gains or losses for the year 1930. In this manner the reduction would not take effect on the outcome of the recent downward trend of prices on the New York Stock Exchange. It, too, was opposed by administration leaders, and seemed likely to be defeated.

A fourth plan, sponsored by Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, to grant additional reductions in the corporation tax, applicable to corporations having incomes of $28,000 or less, likewise was opposed by those in charge of the bill. The Brookhart amendment would impose on corporations the regular normal tax and surtax now applied to individual incomes under $28,000. This would mean a reduction of their taxes from the 11 per cent rate, carried in the resolution, to the regular individual income sliding scale ranging from one half of 1 per cent to 4 per cent maximum. It undoubtedly will be rejected, because it would call for a slash in taxes far exceeding the limits announced by the Treasury.

There were indications the resolution would be adopted sometime during the afternoon. It has the indorsement of both Republican and Democratic leaders.

EX-WIFE JAILED FOR SHOOTING

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Mrs. Helen Lois Andrade, former wife of Albert Francis Andrade, multi-millionaire property owner, of Los Angeles and Mexico, was lodged in the county jail today on a charge that she fired five shots at her ex-husband.

The alleged shooting took place Thursday night in Beverly Hills at the home of Mrs. Mary Warren, where Andrade was visiting with his present wife, Mrs. Judith Lavender Andrade. Andrade was not wounded.

Mrs. Andrade's arrest last night is said to have culminated a bitter legal battle between Andrade and his former wife over millions of dollars worth of property in the United States and Lower California.

WIFE SLAYER SURRENDERS

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 14.—"I want to be locked up," announced a stranger who appeared at the county jail here late last night.

"What for?" asked Warden D. W. Creigh.

"Murder," was the calm response.

"Come in," said Warden Creigh as he unlocked the door.

Upon inquiry, the man said he was Charles Wurtz, 26, of St. Louis, and that he had killed his wife, Marie Wurtz, in St. Louis, June 24, 1928.

Inquiry by District Attorney Warren S. Burchinal brought an immediate telegram stating that Wurtz was wanted in St. Louis for the slaying of his wife, and he will be held here until arrangements for his extradition can be completed.

Wurtz said the killing was accidental. He stated he had not been living with his wife, but that on the night of her death she called him and asked him to come to her apartment. She drew a revolver and tried to shoot him, he said, but he grabbed the weapon and in the struggle she fell to the floor. He escaped, fleeing from St. Louis. Later he returned and learned she had died and he left again.

"Every time I encountered an officer I thought he was looking for me," said Wurtz. "The suspense was too much. I feel comfortable for the first time in more than a year."

Jazz Music Strengthens Handclasp, Society Told

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—A scientific fact that may explain the vogue of jazz dance music—it appears to tighten the handclasp—was reported to the Acoustical Society of America today.

"Speed of tapping with the hand has been found to be slightly increased after listening to jazz music compared with this speed after listening to classical music," the report stated. "The same investigators report an advantage of about 2 per cent in strength of grip after listening to jazz music, but this advantage disappears after 25 periods of listening to the classical and popular selections."

The report, given by Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the Psychological Laboratory of Colgate University, was a general summary of experiments made by many investigators with sound.

In studying the effect of sound on eyesight, an investigator reported ability to distinguish colors at a distance when a tuning fork sounded, although he had found them unrecognizable before the sound. Sensations of smell appear to be affected sometimes by sound, one experimentor finding that noise increases these sensations.

'ANTIS' PLEDGE UNITED DRIVE ON DRY LAW

Foes of 18th Amendment Lay Plans for Congress Battle on Legislation

By WILLIAM S. NEAL,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Militant anti-prohibition leaders of the House today took the oath of harmony and pledged themselves to present a united front in an intensive congressional drive on the prohibition amendment, thus dispelling the likelihood of a serious split in their ranks.

Although there is difference of opinion among the anti-prohibitionists as to the best method of carrying on their fight for repeal in the face of an overwhelming dry strength in Congress, advocates of conflicting views declared that they would stick together on the main issue.

TO CALL MEETING

Rep. J. Charles Linthicum, (Dem.) of Maryland, chairman of the unofficial committee for modification of the prohibition law, announced he would call a meeting after the Christmas recess and suggested new officers may be selected.

This action followed the plan of Reps. La Guardia, (Rep.) of New York, Schafer, (Rep.), of Wisconsin, and Englebright, (Rep.) of California, to gather anti-prohibitionists together today for a discussion of the legislative situation. Although some anti-prohibitionists interpreted this as a serious split, all parties today claimed they would work in harmony.

"Many of us want to get concerted action among the anti-prohibitionists," explained Schafer. "Every day facts and figures on prohibition are being produced which ought to be presented to Congress and the people.

"We are not trying to disrupt the anti-prohibition committee, but seeking action. I believe there are fully 125 out of 435 members of the House who would vote to modify the prohibition law on a showdown. Many others are ready to change personally, but do not think the sentiment has changed enough in their districts as yet."

WOMAN IN DRIVE

Mrs. Florence Kahn, Republican congresswoman from California, who is secretary of the Linthicum committee, said she had no objections to the La Guardia-Schafer-Englebright move and predicted harmony in the anti-prohibition ranks.

Representative Black (Dem.), of New York, however, objected to any action being taken outside of the regularly organized "anti-prohibition bloc."

5 BREAK PRISON IN OKLAHOMA

M'ALESTER, Okla., Dec. 14. — (AP.)—Five men, believed to be among the most dangerous inmates of the state penitentiary here, were at large today after digging under the walls of the prison and escaping some time late yesterday.

Details of the escape were meager. Dr. John Q. Newell, warden, and the deputy warden refused to discuss the case, but it was said the men were reported missing at the 6 o'clock roll call last night.

A hurried search of the prison revealed the hole under the wall and prison guards and a pack of bloodhounds immediately took up the trail of the missing convicts.

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The Tulsa World says today that it was informed by Frank Thornton, deputy warden of the state penitentiary at McAlester, that the five convicts who escaped are James Fletcher, Herbert Mooney, Allison Ivey, Edward Young and J. C. Fleirman. Their records were unavailable.

Detention Home Boy Leaps, Escapes

A 14-year-old boy who escaped from the detention rooms of the Juvenile Court by leaping from a second story window last night was being sought by police today. Attaches of the place pursued the boy, but he eluded them. He had been committed to the home for a minor offense, police said.

Sunset on Moon Recorded By Movie Camera

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Moving pictures of a sunset on the moon and pictures taken in absolute darkness were shown at the annual meeting of the board of trustees of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

The sunset film was photographed on Mt. Wilson with a moving picture camera using the 100-inch reflector of the observatory's huge telescope as lens.

Lengthening shadows in craters of the moon marked the sweep of the sun over the horizon of an area the size of the state of New Jersey.

Sunrise and sunset on earth are caused by the globe's rotation on its axis, causing the sun apparently to sweep across the sky each day. Similarly the moon rotates on its axis once in 27 1-3 days.

Because of the leisurely manner of the sun's apparent sweep across the moon's sky, the film covered an actual time of five and one-half hours, while the changes observed were translated by the film in one and one-half minutes.

Pictures taken in absolute darkness recorded the effect of infrared radiation, that part of the spectrum that is invisible when light is broken into its component colors by a prism.

New dyes for sensitizing photographic plates enabled the Mt. Wilson scientists to picture the unseen deep red by utilizing its energy.

Alleging that a surgeon's needle was left in his body after an operation to remove his appendix, and that it remained there until an operation nearly three years later, Bernard F. Winterberger, of Franklin Township, a farmer, filed suit in Common Pleas Court against Dr. Charles M. Watson, with offices in the Professional Building, asking $50,000 damages.

Ashes of Death Pact Victim Go to France

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—The ashes of Henry Crosby, young poet and realist, were on their way to France today in the keeping of his widow, who sailed alone on the Berengaria.

The few handfuls of gray dust are to be placed on the top of an ancient windmill, part of the old estate at Ermenonville, which the dead poet and his wife had converted into a summer home.

Crosby, who in his poems, wrote of a desire to meet a violent death, was found dead in the apartment of a friend here a few days ago. Near him lay the body of Mrs. Josephine Rotch Bigelow, Boston society matron. Both were dead from bullet wounds. A pistol was found in Crosby's hand.

U. S. CLOSES RUM CASE MONDAY

Attorneys for Defense in McKeesport Conspiracy Trial Keep Plans Secret

The government will close its case Monday in the prosecution of the 21 defendants on trial in the so-called McKeesport rum conspiracy case before Federal Judge R. M. Gibson, according to present plans of government attorneys. When court adjourned yesterday the jurors and government witnesses were excused until Monday morning. No plans of the defense have been revealed.

The high spots of interest at the afternoon session were the testimony of Charles Friedman and Harry Markoss, convicted in the previous McKeesport liquor conspiracy trial in 1927, who, upon being recalled to the witness stand, gave testimony tending to show further "inside" operations in the alleged conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law. In addition to the recall of the two men, First Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh called 16 other witnesses.

LINKS POLICE HEADS

Friedman, who in his previous testimony admitted being a big operator in illegal liquor traffic, both as a manufacturer and seller of moonshine whisky, testified he had an understanding with John F. Brennan, former chief of police of McKeesport, and Charles L. Bergstedt, former chief of police of Versailles, for his whisky-laden machines to pass through those towns unmolested.

He testified he gave them lists of license numbers of automobiles of his and his associates and that certain motorcycle policemen in McKeesport carried with them license numbers of "outside" machines he wanted stopped. He also said he had an understanding with Reinhard, but the latter, who was always "fishing" for booze cars, had one time been beaten by Harry Uskovitz, a defendant.

Markoss testified that in 1926 he met Chief Bergstedt and asked for protection in hauling liquor through Versailles. He said he gave the police officer numbers of plates on certain machines and had told Bergstedt that everything was all right in McKeesport.

TELL OF RAIDS

Most all the witnesses, including two women, were called by the government for the purpose of substantiating testimony given by Charles Friedman and Markoss, who had been the first two witnesses for the prosecution. Andy Lehocky told of renting a house on a farm near McKeesport to Adolph Markovitz at $100 a month, to be used for a distillery. Under cross-examination he said he gave false testimony at the 1927 trial when he said he did not know anything about a still on the premises.

'REFORM' CHIEF DRY CONVICT

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—William Payne, president of a reputed "reform" organization here, today faces a two-year penitentiary sentence and a fine of $10,000. He was found guilty of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

Hubert P. Delaney, former court bailiff, also was found guilty of the same charge yesterday. He faces a five-year term in addition to the $10,000 fine.

State witnesses described Payne's Law and Order League as a racketeering organization maintaining an outward stand for law enforcement, but actually forcing saloonkeepers to buy liquor from designated beer-peddling gangs.

Woman Who Poured Oil on Fire Dies

Emma Gordon, 51, Negro, of 416 Colwell street, died in the Passavant Hospital today from burns suffered late yesterday when she poured oil on a fire, according to the coroner's report. Neighbors extinguished her blazing clothing when she ran into the street.

Separated, Man Buys Dwelling From Wife

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Dr. Lee O. Walker, and his wife were in the domestic relations court here, the latter suing the husband for $100 a month support.

The doctor said he gave to the wife the house they lived in when they separated and that it could be sold for $12,000. The wife told the court it could not be sold for that amount.

"I'll give you the price for it," said the doctor.

"All right, I'll sell it," replied the wife.

"Sold," exclaimed Judge Leopold C. Glass from the bench like a real auctioneer.

GRUNDY AWAITS ASSIGNMENT

"backward." He may also win a post on the Senate committee on banking and currency, which would place him under the chairmanship of Senator Norbeck, (Rep.) of South Dakota, who comes from another of Grundy's "backward states," in order to get any of his legislative proposals through these committees, Grundy will have to win the approval of the two insurgents from his "backward states."

The Pennsylvanian, while he naturally would desire places on the important finance and appropriations committees, will have to wait many years before receiving such assignments.

He now ranks as the Senate's newest member and consequently will have to yield to every other member in the body on assignments, because of the seniority rule.

Hole in Shoe Gives Police Holdup Clue

A hole in the sole of his shoe led to the arrest of Francis Yost, 26, of 6811 Thomas boulevard, on charges of stealing $75 and $5,000 in stock certificates from the safe of the Howard Cleaning Company, 1226 Reedsdale street, City Detective Edward Dunn testified in Central Police Court today.

A footprint on the top of the safe gave the clue. Yost confessed in Police Court today, defending that his wife and baby were hungry.

Police recovered the stock certificates, and Yost's offer to return the cash was refused by the company manager.

Congressman Refuses Place With De Priest

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—There's an unexpected vacancy on the House Committee on Enrolled Bills today because Representative Oscar De Priest (Rep.), of Illinois, only Negro member of the House, was assigned a place on it.

Representative Allgood (Dem.), of Alabama, resigned his membership on the committee and frankly gave as his reason the fact he would not sit with a Negro.

"The Enrolled Bills Committee," Allgood said, "is an honorary committee. I cannot serve my district on it and, now that the Republican from Chicago has been added to it, I do not desire the honor."

De Priest has been assigned to the Indian affairs and invalid pensions committees in addition to that on enrolled bills.

U. S. NAVAL PARLEY DELEGATES DENIED LUXURY JOURNEY

MUST TRAVEL UNDER FLAG OF NATION

Floating Palaces Closed To Men Who Go to London For Disarmament Meeting

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Plans of the American delegation to the London naval conference to travel on a liner flying a foreign flag have been thrown into confusion by a ruling from Comptroller General McCarl.

The ruling virtually forces the delegation to use the slow cabin ship, George Washington, which lacks luxurious quarters. Otherwise Uncle Sam cannot okay the bill, according to the ruling.

McCarl reported that the American delegation must travel on a ship flying the American flag. The George Washington, which sails from New York January 11, is the only American ship available.

The decision pointed out that under the Jones-White law, United States officials must travel on American ships whenever it is possible.

If the delegation uses a foreign ship, it must make affidavit that there is no American ship available for the voyage in order to have the vouchers sent through the Treasury Department to defray the transportation approved.

Secretary of State Stimson has been endeavoring to secure the Leviathan for the trip. The great liner's sailing schedule would have to be advanced four days, however, in order to permit the delegation to arrive in London in time for the opening of the conference. So far this plan has not succeeded.

The delegation then planned to sail either on the Olympic, of the White Star line and flying the British flag, or use the Bremen, the new German liner, which holds the transatlantic speed record.

McCarl's ruling, however, interprets the law as preventing use of the Olympic or the Bremen, because of the fact that the George Washington can be used for the voyage.

President Hoover was said to have decided that under the law McCarl's ruling is correct.

CALLES ARREST BARRED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(INS)—A telegram sent by the State Department to Laredo, Tex., and not American guns, as previously reported, will save Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, from being arrested at the Texas town in connection with two murders.

The message, saying Calles had been afforded full diplomatic immunity in an American visa attached to his Mexican passport, was directed to John A. Walls, district attorney at Laredo. Walls had announced he would arrest Calles when the Mexican leader passed through Texas on his return trip from Europe.

Secretary of State Stimson took this action after Richard Boyce, American consul, reported Walls would not molest Calles if Boyce could show him an official letter stating immunity had been granted him.

The message also stated President Hoover fully recognizes the special immunity granted Calles for his round-trip through the country from New York.

No armed guard has been detailed to see his trip to the southern repulic is not interrupted, Stimson said.

LEAP FROM CLUB KILLS MAN

Prohibition agents today were seeking the owner of a second-floor club at 4829 Second avenue, from a window of which a patron leaped to his death while a raid was in progress last night.

The victim, James L. Fresch, 25, of 306 Johnston avenue, leaped from the window to an alley in the rear of the club and suffered a fractured skull. He was pronounced dead at Homeopathic Hospital, where he was taken by police.

Fresch, agents said, was found in the place when they had forced their way into it. David J. Davies, 48, of 4740 Chatsworth street, alleged bartender, and John A. Aiello, 25, of 38 Genesta street, doorman, were arrested in the raid in which three barrels of beer were destroyed and several bottles of moonshine seized, according to the agents.

While the raid was in progress, Fresch walked from a front room into a washroom, opened a window and leaped out in an attempt to escape, the dry officers declared. As a customer he would not have been arrested, they said.

Aiello was charged with interferring with a Federal officer, after he was alleged to have attempted to lock the door on the agents.

SEARCH FOR OWNER

The identity of the club's owner was learned following the raid, and a search instituted for him.

Sixty-five pints of prescription whisky found in an automobile after it had collided with another at Magee and Bluff streets, were confiscated by prohibition agents. The machine was abandoned after the crash, agents said.

The Federal officers expressed belief that the liquor had been stolen from some pharmacy.

AUBURN PRISON REFORM ASKED

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(INS.)—With order prevailing within the walls of Auburn Prison, following the convict mutiny which cost nine lives, questions of prison policy today overshadowed all developments. In the last 24 hours these things have happened:

1.—The immediate resignation of Dr. Raymond, F. C. Kieb, State Commissioner of Correction, has been demanded because of his alleged unfitness to deal with the emergency.

2.—Charles D. Osborn, mayor of Auburn, and son of the late Thomas Mott Osborn, famous advocate of prison reform, charged that a "reign of terror" now exists at Auburn.

3.—Warden Edgar S. Jennings, who is recuperating from the gasing he receiving during the outbreak, extolled the bravery of the guards during the mutiny. He has been supplanted, temporarily at least, by a sergeant of the guard.

4.—Gov. Roosevelt was studying the situation with a view of making recommendations to the State Legislature.

At the prison, meanwhile, search was continuing for revolvers used by the prisoners during the riot. Six of 12 guns believed to have been in the hands of convicts have been recovered.

MIRACLE GRAVE BODY MOVED

MALDEN, Mass., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The remains of Father Patrick J. Power were removed yesterday from the burial plot to a large triangular plot near the entrance of All Souls' chapel in the Holy Cross Cemetery here. The cemetery which has been closed for weeks by order of Cardinal O'Connell, of the archdiocese of Boston, has been this fall the scene of scores of pilgrimages to Father Power's grave.

Scores of cures were reported by those who prayed at the grave and scores more by others, who carried to their homes small bottles of water scooped from the chalice of the gravestone or parcels of earth from the burial plot.

The removal was without ceremony.

The pine box, which contained the remains of the priest for years was replaced by a bronze casket before the change was made.

Opposed to him during the campaign will be Deputies Roy Smith and William Treadwell. Smith shot and killed Mrs. De King and was in turn shot by the De Kings' 12-year-old son, Gerald. Treadwell likewise participated in the raid. Friends of the three candidates predict a spirited campaign.

TEACHER DEATH CLUE TRACED

ROCKFORD, Ill., Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Two fresh developments relating to the mysterious gas pipe murder of Miss Cordelia Gummersheimer gave fresh impetus today to the search for the assailant who clubbed the gomely High School language teacher to death in her bed early last Sunday.

Authorities are basing their main hope on the promise of a Madison, (Wis.) woman, who intimated that she holds information which will locate the person who beat in the skull of Miss Gummersheimer in her apartment here.

The new informant pledged police to secrecy as to her identity for fear of her life. In her letter to District Attorney William Knight she promised "vital information concerning the guilty man," asking only that her name be withheld.

Beyond a statement that an arrest is expected soon, police refused to divulge the nature of their informant's story after they interviewed her.

Meanwhile authorities are continuing their search of surrounding territory for a coatless and hatless maniac who leaped on a truck driven by George Meredith, 25-year-old farm hand, and beat him with a club. Police immediately saw the possibility that Meredith's attacker might have been the slayer who wielded the length of gas pipe which killed Miss Gummersheimer.

Auto Victim Fights War Over Again, Recovers

BISMARCK, N. D., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—When John Brazerol suffered a fractured skull in a traffic accident here more than a month ago, his mental faculties slipped back to the World War period and he became a soldier again.

For weeks Brazerol fought battles in his delirium. And then the World Was was over; he started the trek home, checking off the miles of his daily progress. Finally he reached Bismarck, his destination—and returned to normal consciousness.

Hospital attaches revealed the strange story today after Brazerol had departed for his mother's home in Washington, D. C.

Justice of the Peace J. L. Degelman, of Ben Avon, last night postponed the hearing of William McLuckie, Sr., of Pittsburgh, arrested yesterday morning after a wild automobile ride through Emsworth, Ben Avon and Avalon. McLuckie, according to Ben Avon police, was pronounced under the influence of liquor by a physician following his arrest. He was charged with disorderly conduct, driving while under the influence of liquor and reckless driving.

CHILDREN SAD, BROTHER GONE

Little Benjamin B. Griffiths, 4, may not have his brother and two baby sisters with him when Santa comes this year.

Benjamin's brother, James E. Griffiths, also 4, and two sisters, Dorothy Lou, 2, and Jane Mary Griffiths, six months, went with their mother, Mrs. Ursula Griffiths, yesterday, after their custody was granted her by Judge James B. Drew in Common Pleas Court.

Yesterday when the young mother went to her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Griffiths, of 2015 Texdale street, from whom she had won custody of the four children, she was informed that Benjamin "was away." When the mother had her three children settled in her four-room apartment in Coraopolis she called her attorney, Ralph H. Smith, and informed him that Benjamin was still in the hands of her mother-in-law. Mr. Smith will attempt to secure Benjamin for the mother without again going to court.

Benjamin's troubles began November 24 last, when his mother alleged she was forced from her mother-in-law's home, where she had been living since the death of her husband, Benjamin Griffiths, because her dead husband's mother objected to her "going out" in the evening. According to the mother her children were not permitted to go with her.

The younger Mrs. Griffiths was the mother of five children during the five years since her marriage at the age of 16.

His companions, George Koenig, 21, of 3101 Mission street; Lawrence Ruhl, 28, of 749 Broughton street, and William Anders, 25, of 619 Woodward avenue, Stowe Township, the driver, were taken to Pittsburgh Hospital. Anders and Koenig suffered probable skull fractures, and Ruhl lacerations of the head and body.

The truck with which their automobile collided was driven by James Harrod, 23, of 250 South Atlantic avenue, who was arrested, police reported.

ETNA POLICE EXAMINING ARTICLES FOUND IN THE HOME OF NICK DUBICH, ETNA, HELD ON BURGLARY CHARGES

Stolen Goods Exhibit Like Auction Sale

Stolen goods valued at several thousand dollars and in sufficient variety to stock a general store are held for reclamation in the Etna Police Station.

From Etna, Sharpsburg and surrounding communities, housewives, mechanics, school children, tradesmen and proprietors of stores and restaurants are trooping in to examine articles stolen during the last two months. Their appearance resembles the rush of early buyers at an auction.

While Chief of Police Samuel J. Fry, of Etna, is seeking to restore the goods to the owners, county detectives are questioning Nick Dubich, 35, of 9 Freeport street, Etna, who was caught, the police say, while he was fleeing from a store with a bagful of new shoes valued at $300. The goods were found in Dubich's house after the man was arrested at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning by Patrolman Charles F. Kane, of the Etna Borough force.

Part of the goods carted from the Dubich house filled a side of the police station and persons whose homes or business places had been entered during the last six months were asked to look over the exhibit. Within an hour the police station was crowded with victims.

Mrs. John Neff, of Cherry street, was the first claimant and recognized a large refrigerator which had been carried from her cellar. Her neighbor, Mrs. William Cook, said she found a wringer and washbench stolen months ago.

The Rev. Robert S. Young, of Glenshaw, had a profitable afternoon, he said, when he recovered a quantity of silver tableware and a mahogany clock more than 50 years old which had been cherished in his family as an heirloom. Blumming Bros., shoe dealers, found nearly 100 pairs of shoes, slippers and goloshes which had been stolen from their store on two occasions within the last six weeks.

In the loot is a child's express wagon which had been used in transporting an iron machine drill weighing several hundred pounds. In the collection are kits of tools, clocks, flashlights, women's evening dresses, rugs, curtains and fine linens.

Dubich wil be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Dan Giles, of Etna, Monday night.

Only 1 of 4 Servants Aided In Bindley Will Alive

One servant of four remembered by Mrs. Mary M. Bindley in her $3,850,000 estate was revealed as living today to enjoy the gift given for faithful service. The bequests were revealed yesterday.

Thirty-seven years of service in Mrs. Bindley's family earned John Norton a gift of $25,000 but the coachman who became chauffeur and later the caretaker of the estate at 6111 Fifth avenue, died in May, 1928. Norton, who was first employed by Mrs. Bindley's father, John Musgrave, and then by Mrs. Bindley when her parent died, married and raised his family at the Bindley home.

For the 22 years prior to his death and during which time Mrs. Bindley did not occupy the home, Norton was the only persons who possessed a key to the house. His widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Norton and three children, Miss Sarah E. and Jennie A. Norton and Charles Norton, of 4707 Stanton avenue, will receive the money.

Anna M. Gettys, who served as a companion for 18 to 20 years, died three years ago. Her share, $10,000, will go to a brother and sister, J. G. Gettys, of 11 South Emily street, and Mrs. Sarah E. Montgomery, of Ingram.

Thirty-four years ago, a nurse for Mrs. Bindley's paralyzed aunt, Miss Jennie Musgrave, became the wife of Alexander McKnight, Oakland contractor, who died in 1926. She had served from the time she was 13 years of age until her twenty-fifth year. The will gives Mrs. Mary McKnight, now dead, a $5,000 gift, which will go to her daughter, Miss Mary J. S. McKnight, of 4520 Filmore street, a kindergarten teacher at the Warrington avenue playgrounds.

The only person who survives Mrs. Bindley is Miss Ellen O'Connor, of 6046 Jackson street. She served as a companion and friend for more than 25 years. Her share is $5,000.

COME TO CHURCH

The Church Is the Meeting Place of God and His People

SERMONETTE

"BELIEVE IN GOD"

By REV. DR. GEORGE W. SHELTON,
Second Presbyterian Church

(Excerpts from sermon preached by Rev. George W. Shelton, D. D., pastor Second Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, in The City Temple, London, published in The Christian World Pulpit.)

"BELIEVE IN GOD"—John 14:1.

Jesus, having said, very tenderly to his perplexed and sorrowing disciples, "Let not your heart be troubled," rushes on to say, "Believe in God; believe also in Me." It is all one sentence, one admonition, one call to helpless perishing men. Faith is the healing potion which he prescribes for the sore heart. "What time I am afraid, I will trust in Thee." Trust is the antidote to fear. Faith and fear cannot live in the same house. He forbids His disciples to seek refuge in stoicism or in a foolish attempt to disregard their malady. Jesus saw sin, suffering and sorrow as stark realities. He does not permit the folly of self-deception. He always recognizes the hard facts of life and grapples with them fearlessly.

What shall they believe, and what shall we believe? "Believe in God." The problems of doubt are more than the problems of faith. It is easier to believe in God today than ever before. He has been revealing Himself gradually, progressively in all history. He has all but unveiled Himself before the faces of men today. The greatness, the harmony, the manifest purposefulness of nature more than ever before impress men with design, and, therefore, with a designer. Does anybody suppose his watch, with all its intricate and wisely adjusted parts, "just happened?" To do so would certainly require more credulity than to believe a skilled artisan designed and made it. Even Voltaire declares, "If God did not exist, it would be necessary to invent Him."

REV. GEORGE W. SHELTON

Everybody believes in God but all do not believe in the same kind of God. Jesus taught us nothing more valuable than how to think about God. His disciples were to believe in the kind of God they saw revealed in Him — in the Christlike God. "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." It will help us to think of God in the terms of Jesus. If we would know God, we have but to hear Jesus say to a sinning woman, "Go, and sin no more;" we have but to see Him feeding the hungry multitudes and moving with sympathetic helpfulness among the poor, the sick and the troubled. "Jesus wept." His tears are the tears of God. What Jesus was God is. He makes God concrete and understandable. God is like Jesus. William Newton Clarke utters a helpful word, "God is the personal spirit, perfectly good, who in Holy Love creates, sustains and orders all."

The disciples were to believe that God is just and good. It is quite as important to believe in the justice as it is to believe in the love of God. Justice without love would be cold and unsympathetic; love without justice would be unreasonable and weak. Browning's way of putting it is "All's love, but all's law." Who would have it otherwise? Law is God's way of working, and guarantees His freedom from mere caprice; Love His purpose, and moves Him to gracious ends. "God is Love," inscribed upon the farmer's weathervane, as related by Spurgeon, did not mean that God's love was variable as the wind, but that whichever way the wind might blow, yet "God is Love."

Jesus teaches us, when we pray, to say "Our Father." He could have made no greater revelation of the character of God. The Mohammedan has ninety-nine names for God, but "Father" is not even one of them.

They were to believe in the over-ruling Providence of God. Nothing tests one's faith more than one's own experience in the matter of guidance. Only one who has felt deeply and reached reality can say, "We know that all things work together for good for them that love God." I like to think of Emanuel Kant's words here, that the wisdom of God is shown quite as much in what is withheld from us as in what is revealed to us. After his long, hard struggle for faith, Horace Bushnell said to his church, "I have been in Hartford forty years, but I know Jesus better than I know any one of you." This is the faith of experience, which smites doubt and may ever be dogmatic.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Women Sponsor Benefit Tea Dance Of Girl Scouts

DURING the Yuletide season the hardest hearts are apt to soften. Remember Scrooge. So at the holiday time when folks are in their most "giving" mood, society women who direct various philanthropies are wont to give benefits.

One benefit I know of will make the giver truly blessed. I'm referring to the benefit tea dance to be given next Saturday afternoon at the Hotel Schenley ballroom for the benefit of the Girl Scouts of Allegheny County.

In charge of the dance is capable Mrs. Frazier Vose Babcock and assisting her are Mrs. C. L. Pierce [illegible] arranging for patronesses are Mrs. Carl H. Borntraeger, [illegible] Mrs. W. Edgar Reed, [illegible] floor committee, Mrs. Walter F. Schlueter, tickets, and Mrs. Edward Stieren, publicity.

Among those who are giving their patronage to the event are, I happen to know, Mrs. William G. Costin, Mrs. Charles W. Dahlinger, Mrs. Frank C. Demmler, Mrs. Thomas Ewing, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, Mrs. Chester G. Fisher, Mrs. B. G. Follansbee, Mrs. William C. Follansbee, Mrs. Ralph E. Flinn, Mrs. John G. Frazer, Miss Sarah B. Frazer, Mrs. James W. Friend, Mrs. Charles J. Graham, Mrs. Tracy W. Guthrie and Mrs. J. M. Hansen.

Others who are interested I've been told, are Mrs. Ralph W. Harbison, Mrs. Thomas R. Hartley, Mrs. C. G. Heineman, Mrs. William A. Herron, Mrs. W. H. R. Hilliard, Mrs. George A. Hoetzler, Mrs. Alfred E. Hunt, Miss Martha A. Jamison, Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mrs. Stewart Johnston, Mrs. Edgar J. Kaufmann, Mrs. Frank A. Leovy, Miss Dorothy Liggett and Mrs. F. H. Lloyd.

Margaret is attending a number of the debutante events of the Hub City. The Bullards and their small son, Frederic K. Bullard, Jr., and Margaret will return next week to be with their parents, the Edward H. Brainards, of Woodland road, for the Christmas holidays.

HOME from Smith College for the Yuletide is one of our debutantes, Mary Wharton Knox, daughter of the Roger Knoxes. Her mother will present her to society at a buffet luncheon on Monday, December 23, in the Knox home.

LAST night likeable Jane Bradley Miller, daughter of Frederic Walsingham Miller, of Shady avenue, made her debut at a dinner dance her father gave in the University Club.

In the ballroom silver foliage shaded the chandeliers, and gayly decked Christmas trees banked the corners.

Receiving with her father at the entrance of the ballroom, with her gift bouquets and bamboo and cibotium ferns as a background, was the auburn-haired debutante wearing a distinctive gown of white moire, in the princess mode.

UNUSUALLY pretty and original decorations marked the shoppers' tea given yesterday afternoon at Central Branch Young Women's Christian Association. The tea table, lovely with its silver service and lace and embroidered cloth, was centered by a little trimmed tree.

Four red tapers in silver sticks stood at the corners and tiny wreaths and pots of berries added their note of color also. On all the occasional tables around which the auditorium chairs were grouped in cozy fashion were wrapped packages and a single taper, large bundles and packages in Christmas wrappings and ribbons ornamenting the red-velvet hung stage.

Mrs. Clinston S. Bradley and Mrs. William B. Todd poured and were assisted by Mrs. George J. Ketchum, Mrs. W. Hunter Snead and Mrs. Ernest N. Calhoun. Shopping talks by Miss Margot Sherman and Mrs. Milton Jena, Pittsburgh newspaper women, made a pleasant feature of the affair.

SUITS OF VARIOUS FABRICS ATTRACTING MUCH ATTENTION

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—If you were not suited this Autumn, you undoubtedly will be, next Spring, judging by the sustained popularity of the suit for afternoon wear. But what a luxurious creation has come into being with the amazing style revolution that has brought so many revivals and innovations in its train. It was thought at first, that the tailored suit was to play its part during the Autumn, but instead the three-piece-suit of soft wool, velvet or broadcloth, richly trimmed with divers furs, has emerged as the most favored choice. During the brisk days of last month, and this, these suits were a pleasing alternative to the cloth coat, and even now that the weather here is much brisker, many women wear such suits during the day, for they are not only practical but decorative.

* * *

MOLYNEUX showed some particularly interesting suits in his new collection, and so we send you a sketch of one that was much admired when it was shown at the recent mid-season opening. It is in a soft wool mixture, light but ever so warm, in black and olive-green with a crepe blouse of matching green. The scarf-collar and very deep cuffs are of natural fitch, its tones blending well with the green. The jacket is straight and extremely plain in cut, and the skirt a simple wrap-over model, and yet the model boasts some intricate detail. For example, there is a group of fine tucks at one side of the low waistline to give adequate fullness to the overblouse which fastens at the side and has a bow-knot at the left shoulder. The neckline is diagonal in front.

* * *

MOLYNEUX seems to be favoring gray in various shades in his new collection quite in the manner of Lelong who is faithfully addicted to this hue. It is of dark grey georgette, therefore, that Captain Molyneux created this effective little afternoon dress here shown. The double tiers of the skirt are shirred to a snugly fitting foundation.

DRUG CONTROL CHIEF RESIGNS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—C. C. Concannon has resigned as the representative of the commerce department on the Federal Narcotics Control Board, Universal Service has learned.

He was replaced by James J. O'Hara, assistant solicitor of the department.

The Control Board, composed of representatives of the State, Treasury and Commerce departments, is charged with restricting the importation of opium to the actual medical requirements of the country.

MARKS NEW POLICY

The shift marks a new policy. Concannon was relieved at his own request because his other duties in the department do not permit him to devote sufficient attention to the narcotics problem. He is chief of the chemical division and will remain in that capacity.

The growing duties in connection with narcotics control induced Secretary Lamont to accept Concannon's resignation.

O'Hara, a native of Boston, has been in the Commerce Department for 17 years, during the last nine of which he has been assistant solicitor. He is a graduate of Georgetown University and a member of the Massachusetts and District of Columbia Bar associations.

Only recently the Narcotics Control Board held hearings to determine the amounts of raw opium and coca leaves which may be brought into the country legally next year to be manufactured into morphine, cocaine and other narcotics. The recommendations have been sent to the secretaries of State, Treasury and Commerce for final approval.

URGES IMPORT CUT

Senator Copeland (Dem.), of New York, a noted health expert, appeared before the board to recommend that the imports be cut drastically to prevent diversions into the hands of peddlers. He asserted that the medical profession is using fewer drugs each year in the treatment of disease, and recommended a scientific survey to ascertain the exact medical needs. Heretofore, the board has based medical requirements on manufacturers' sales, not taking into account the great diversions from legal imports.

During the last few years the board has authorized a steady increase in the amounts of opium.

Tackling the narcotics problem from another angle, Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, introduced in the House a resolution authorizing President Hoover to appoint a delegation of 15 members to attend the world conference on narcotic education in London in July, 1931. It would also authorize a joint investigation by the secretary of the treasury and the attorney general of the narcotic problems in the larger American cities preparatory to the conference.

A sum of $40,000 would be set aside for the dual purpose.

"The spreading of narcotic drug addiction, constituting a menace to the public health, the public morals and the public safety, is a matter of grave concern to the nations of the earth," said Fish.

PIANO COURSE INDORSED

The Sun-Telegraph's desire to stimulate the practice of music by Pittsburgh's children is meeting with approval on all sides. Music teachers, school teachers, Scout leaders have recommended the new method.

It is now possible to learn to play the piano quickly and inexpensively by way of the Wurlitzer Music Foundation's music school. The lessons covered are also essential to a true understanding of music. They give a fundamental knowledge of piano necessary to a pupil desiring to take lessons on other instruments.

The method used is built around a mechanical, soundless keyboard and the teaching of melody instead of scales. The scales and notes are learned by learning to play melodies. No piano is necessary, for the keyboard takes its place.

The Sun-Telegraph is offering this three-month course free to Pittsburghers. Any person, young or old, who obtains three 26-week subscriptions to the Sun-Telegraph can take the course.

CANADA GIVEN U. S. APOLOGY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—An expression of "regret" by the American government to Canada over the action of a coast guard patrol boat firing solid shot into the Canadian vessel Shawnee September 11, more than 14 miles off the port of New York, was on its way to Ottawa today.

Secretary of State Stimson, replying to a request for information from Canadian Minister Massey, sent the apology before the incident had reached the stage of formal protest, and declared the Shawnee had been fired on "without legal authority."

Stimson's action was the exact reverse of that taken when the Canadian rum runner I'm Alone was sunk by shell fire 200 miles off the Louisiana coast in the Gulf of Mexico, March 22, last, resulting in the death of a member of the crew, a Frenchman. In that case the State Department disputed the contention of the Canadian government the sinking was unjustified, and Canada agreed to submit the case to arbitration under the terms of the British anti-rum smuggling treaty.

An investigation by the State Department of the circumstances of the Shawnee case was said to have convinced Stimson the vessel was beyond the 12-mile limit or one hour's steaming distance from the American coast.

MUSIC

Jacques Thibaud

Carnegie Music Hall

PROGRAM

Sonte	Henri Eccles (1670-1742)
Adagio	Vivaldi-Bach
Prelude and Allegro	Pugnani
Concerto in B Minor	Saint Saens
En Bateau	DeBussy
Spanish Dance	Granados
Sicilienne (18th Century)	Paradis
La Vida Breve	De Falla

Jacques Thibaud, French violinist, played a recital before the Art Society in Carnegie Music Hall last night. He is no newcomer to these concerts, and secured himself more firmly than ever before in the hearts of the audience, for, like Kreisler, he is a personality that defies analysis, but always wins his way with the first draw of his bow.

Fred Lissfelt

His program helped confirm the belief that more and more players are searching among unplayed scores of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries for beautiful music to counteract the tedious tunes of the new schools. Henri Eccles was the gifted son of an insane father, also a violinist, the son, discouraged in England, found his way to France, where he wrote the sonata of this program. No other violinist could have found this finely spun music more to his style than Thibaud. To continue through Vivaldi-Bach then Pugnani showed what a poor talent Saint-Saens was in comparison.

The Saint-Saens concerto has not been heard here in a long while, and seems to be chosen only when players have used all others and need variety in their program. It is very barren of musical ideas, and when the song does appear in the slow movement, it certainly lacks any distinction.

The great repose of Thibaud's playing is no sign that he lacks fire; his Spanish music glows but there is no madness in his dancing melodies. Tasso Janopaulo played his accompaniments in mezza voce. As encores came the now everpresent Brahms waltz and a dance of Granados.

During the intermission, President Heinroth of the Art Society awarded the Martin Leisser prize of $100 for the best song submitted by composers of Allegheny County. There were 13 entries, and Oscar L. Helfenbein won with his song "Starlight." Dr. Heinroth announced that the song would be sung at an early concert of the society.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—For hours upon memorable hours, the greatest show of them all unrolled itself on the vast stage of the Shrine auditorium.

It was the show of shows, with charity as its keynote and the Yuletide spirit as its motive, the sixteenth annual Los Angeles Examiner Christmas benefit pageant.

Some 300 of the world's most famous stars of the stage and screen gave of their consummate best to make the show what it was, by far the most successful in the Examiner's history.

THOUSANDS ATTEND

Uncounted thousands of men and women, packing the huge auditorium, likewise gave lavishly to swell the funds which are intended to make hundreds of the city's unfortunate happy on Christmas Day.

They, however, got full value in return. They saw before them, passing in bewildering, breath taking succession, numberless artists whose names are a by-word the world over.

For instance, there was the incomparable team of Weber and Fields.

There was the round creator of magic melodies, Paul Whiteman and his world-renowned band.

Too, there were Moran and Mack, telling things in their own droll fashion.

50 ACTS STAGED

Alice Gentle was there. So was Harry Jolson, Charles Farrell, Janet Gaynor, Harry Langdon and Wallace Berry.

They were but a few of the 300 artists. In all more than 50 acts were presented under the masterful direction of Marco, who flew here from New York to supervise the program.

Walter Armstrong capably assisted him by providing from his own scenic studios and the property shops of the Joseph Bach Company as well as from many other sources the various stage props and settings necessary to put on the mammoth bill.

ROTHSTEIN NET $2,512,933

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—An accounting filed by the temporary administrators in Surrogate's Court showed that the estate of Arnold Rothstein, Broadway gambler slain a year ago last November, has assets of $2,512,933. The principal items were jewelry and real estate corporation holdings.

Nathan Burkman, attorney for the estate, filed a bill for $75,000 for legal services. In his petition the attorney said the estate was in a poor condition at the time of Rothstein's death, but various claims against it had been liquidated and it now was in excellent condition.

George McManus, another Whiteway gambler, recently was acquitted on a charge of murdering Rothstein. Rothstein's will was admitted to probate last July.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 14.—Following a blaze which demolished the rear of a residence at 670 West Chestnut street, this city, Mrs. Fred Campbell, 21, is in the Washington hospital with severe burns, Frank Jones, 39, is in the hospital with slight burns and Buddy, two-year-old son of Jones, is in the hospital suffering from fright and shock. Mrs. Jones is in the home of a sister, with severe burns. The fire originated from an overheated stove. Those in the house were burned while making certain that all their children were safe. Loss was estimated at $1,500.

7 Volcanoes Active On Aleutian Islands

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Reports that seven volcanoes on the Eastern Aleutian Islands and the southern coast of Alaska Peninsula, were spouting flames and spreading dense sulphur smoke in the first general outburst in that region since 1927 was believed by marine men here today to indicate that island and coast contours there are again being altered.

The crew of the steamer Starr arrived here with reports that the Volcanoes Katmai, Pavlof, Mageik, Kagamil, Akutan, Chigonagak and Shisaldin were unusually active.

Zep to Carry Radio Picture Device In Arctic

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—When the dirigible "Graf Zeppelin" takes off for the North Pole next spring, she will be equipped with a special radio apparatus for transmitting pictures by wireless. Even while the giant airship is speeding over the limitless white wastes of the Arctic, newspaper readers will be able to follow the flight in pictures as well as words.

The apparatus is also intended to receive weather charts, thus obviating the necessity of the navigation officers' laboriously drawing them with the aid of weather information received by wireless.

STEEL INDUSTRY HOLDS DOWN STOCKS

Ingot Production During Past Week Was 60 Per Cent of Rated Capacity

By B. E. V. LUTY

Probably the main point in the present situation is that the recent collapse in the stock market has caused men all along the line to aim at the very lowest posible inventory January 1, whereby the natural seasonal decline in activity is accentuated. While it is true that in recent years the general policy has been to carry no stocks, everything is relative, and stocks that may have seemed low a year ago can be pared farther. This matter of stocks extends down the line through various manufactured wares, not being simply a matter of mill products in the hands of mill customers.

Indeed, it applies to steel mills also, for there are mills running at considerably higher rates in their finishing than in their steel marking departments, where by the crude and semi-finished steel they have in stock and in process is decreasing. Thus the current rate of steel ingot production is in such cases below the rate of producing and shipping finished products.

INGOT OUTPUT OFF

The rate of steel ingot production in the past week has been about 60 per cent of capacity. The last official report showed an average rate of 68.90 per cent in November, against 85.21 per cent in October. The decrease in the tonnage rate from October to November was 19 per cent. It is easy to guess that October opened with a rate of about 90 per cent and closed at about 80 per cent. With practically 100 per cent last May, there was a decrease of 10 points in four months and then 10 points more during October, or 20 points in five months, before the collapse of the stock market could exert an influence, an important point to bear in mind in these days of blaming so much on the stock market. In six weeks more there has been a further loss of 20 points. This decrease is made up of three items, a continuance of the former decrease, an ordinary and natural seasonal decrease and a special decrease or an accentuation of the usual seasonal decrease, on account of the change in the stock market.

By the same token that there is such thorough liquidation all along the line, against January 1, there is corresponding prospect that the increase in steel demand regularly experienced after January 1 will not fail this time. It is one of the interesting points in the monthly steel ingot production reports of the last six years that whether December production was relatively low or relatively high production rose to somewhat the same level in the following March or April, simply showing a general progressive gain year by year.

RAIL BUYING

On the whole, the Steel Corporation's reports of unfilled obligations show a substantial decrease in general steel demand in the last two months. The annual rail buying movement is a routine affair, the replacement requirements of the railroads as a whole varying less from year to year than almost any other class of steel demand. The unfilled obligations are swelled, while in the fore part of the new year there are heavier rail shipments than bookings and the influence is the other way. During October and November of this year rail orders were reported totaling almost exactly 1,000,000 tons, and the Steel Corporation's proportion may be taken at around 55 per cent, or say 550,000 tons, its rail shipments being relatively light, although they are now running heavy. Unfilled obligations increased 183,981 tons in October and 39,783 tons in November, or 222,764 tons in the two months, much less than would be accounted for by rails. Total orders to date, reported by name of buyer, amount to 1,400,000 tons against about 1,000,000 tons at this date last year, when the roads were buying later and were averaging slightly smaller tonnages. The Corporation's unfilled obligations decreased 25,363 tons in October and November of last year, but in 1927 there was 306,331 tons increase and in 1926, 213,938 tons increase. The total of unfilled obligations November 30, 4,125,345 tons, is not of trade significance. It is equal to the tonnage that would be produced in four and one-half months of operation at 65 per cent, but actual operations depend upon specifications or shipping orders.

CHRISTMAS PAYROLLS

Mills have been making a special effort to run this week and next, on account of Christmas payrolls. There will be corresponding relaxation later. Christmas is always strictly observed and as it breaks the week in the middle this year many plants or departments will be closed for the entire week, some probably also in the following week.

Fabricated structural steel awards reported in the trade during the week totaled 35,000 tons, making a fair week after five lean weeks. The six-week average is 63 per cent of the weekly average previously in the year. However, the official monthly reports for 10 months showed 18 per cent gain in bookings over the same period of last year, and shipments 10 per cent under bookings, whereby the chances are the structural fabricating shops will end the year with a larger order book than at the beginning. They are commonly understood to be booked for more than four months at the high rate of operation they have had this year.

KOPPERS BUILDING LIGHTED AT NIGHT

As a monument to Pittsburgh industry, the Koppers Company is continuing the use of night flood-lighting effects on its building, found so impressive during the celebration of Light's Golden Jubilee. The display will be permanent in the Pittsburgh skyline.

Business Lower Says Commerce Department

Commercial transactions during the week ended December 7, as reflected by check payments, showed a further slight recession from the preceding week and were also less than for the corresponding week of last year, according to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce. Steel plant activity also declined from both prior periods and the production of bituminous coal mines, while less than during the preceding week, exceeded that for the same week of 1928. The petroleum output on the other hand was larger than for either prior period. Freight car loadings, for the latest reported week, showed a material decline from the corresponding week of last year.

The general index of wholesale prices continued its upward trend, but was still substantially below last year's level. Iron, steel and copper prices showed no change from the preceding week, but those of wheat and of cotton advanced, the price of wheat being also above that of a year ago. Bank loans and discounts continued to recede, but were larger than a year ago. Interest rates on time money showed a further recession from recent levels, while rates on call money were unchanged from the preceding week. Rates on both types of money were much lower than a year ago. Bond prices continued to advance and approached the level for the corresponding week of last year more closely than during any previous week of 1929. Stock prices continued upward, but were lower than a year ago. Business failures were more numerous than during either the preceding week or the corresponding week of last year.

Air Propeller Passes Navy Tests

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Dicks hollow steel aeronautical propeller has satisfactorily passed three series of government tests. In the opinion of officials of the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation these results vindicate the development work and prove that the aviation industry will soon have the advantage of a new type of propeller of exceptional strength and superior durability.

Production of the new propeller is being started by the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation. Output will be on a quantity basis early next year. The patents were acquired early this year at the time of the merger with the Colona Manufacturing Company and the Graham Bolt and Nut Company.

The United States Navy approved these propellers a year ago with the famous Whirlwind engines. At that time the government propeller testing plant at Dayton was not ready to make the drastic tests which its propeller experts considered necessary to meet the demands of present day requirements. This equipment is now in operation. It was recently installed at a cost of several million dollars.

Requirements Exceeded

UNDER the rigorous conditions specified by government experts the propellers have proved capable of carrying more than double the required loads. The three recent tests made at navy expense showed, in the opinion of the experts, that the Dicks hollow steel blades designed for use with a 200 horsepower engine will be found amply safe for use with a 525 horsepower engine. Arrangements have been made by the navy to have this fact determined in the near future. All the engineering calculations and stress analyses made by the navy propeller men indicate that the results will fully justify this belief.

Before the army or navy approves a propeller as safe for service testing with engines, the design of the propeller is carefully studied. The material of which it is made must meet government specifications. The methods of construction are checked in every detail.

Whirled Ten Hours

COMPANY officials state that in the final tests the propeller was whirled for ten hours at twice the horsepower rating of the engine which the propeller is designed to serve. All during this period the government's testing equipment imposed all of the stresses and strains which would be met under the most severe conditions of actual flight. Delicate instruments are used to observe the action of the propeller during the tests.

As an example of the performance of the blades, propellers designed for 200 horsepower engines have been whirled at the government testing plant to a load of 1026 horsepower. Under these severe conditions, with a thrust load of over a ton, the deflection of the blades from a straight line was about one eighth of an inch.

Resists Abrasion

WHILE one does not ordinarily think of an air plane propeller as being exposed to abrasion, this is actually an important factor. In one of the tests the Dicks propeller was whirled during three hours and a half in a heavy downpour of rain. Experience has shown that such treatment ordinarily affects the edges of blades, but it left no mark on the Dicks propeller.

Although various experiments have been made with hollow steel propellers in the past, the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation is the only organization which has perfected a satisfactory product of this kind.

Paper Output Shows Gains in October

According to identical mill reports to the American Paper and Pulp Association from members and co-operating organizations, paper production in October registered an increase of 12 per cent as compared with September, 1929, and an increase of 7 per cent over October, 1928.

AGENCY FORMED IN 1864

Edwards, George and Company, one of the oldest insurance agencies in Pittsburgh, has a record of 65 years of business activity here. The firm was founded by Richard Edwards in 1864. Since that time the business has been greatly enlarged. Many new forms of insurance indemnity have come to the fore, larger insurance companies have been organized and competition has grown more keen.

In 1905 the agency was enlarged through the acquisition of additional partners. At that time the present name was adopted. Since that date, a period of almost 25 years, the organization has greatly increased its volume of business.

Every type of insurance indemnity except life is written directly through companies represented. Losses are adjusted and paid through the agency. In 1928 the agency was incorporated.

5 DAY WEEK IN 270 PLANTS

At least 270 manufacturing establishments in the United States, employing in the aggregate approximately 218,000 persons, are operating on a regular five-day week schedule, according to a report just published by the National Industrial Conference Board. This number includes the Ford plants, but excludes the workers in the building trades working on a five-day schedule.

The total number of wage earners employed on a permanent five-day schedule is not known, but is estimated by the Conference Board to have reached 400,000 persons at the beginning of the current year. Large groups of building trade workers, however, were granted a five-day week later during the year.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

ART EDUCATION IMPROVED HERE

Local School Offers Two-Year Course to Prepare For Commercial Work

Nearly a century and quarter ago a young man in Philadelphia wanted to study art. Knowing that the ability to draw could be acquired only through the use of a living model, he sought a young lady to pose for him. But he failed, because the spirit of "76" still hovered over the year 1805 and no one could be found who would lend her figure to the use of art.

Not discouraged, our young art enthusiast sought the next best thing—a piece of sculpture. Soliciting aid from an influential friend, application was made to France for assistance in procuring suitable copies of antique marble statues. Napoleon had just returned from his Italian victories laden with booty for the Louvure. The idea of republicanism was in the air for the American Revolution and the upheaval in France in 1790 had made the French and American kin. Napoleon ordered casts to be made from some of the antique trophies he had stolen as spoils of war and dispatched them to the young Philadelphian and the foundation of art study in America was begun.

SCHOOLS INCREASE

During the following 125 years the facilities for obtaining an art education increased in our country until present reports indicate the existence of more than 700 art schools. Young men and women who like to draw can develop their talent into a money-making, life-long profession.

But until recent years art was the soul of conservatism, and those who instructed the students, turned them out, cut to the same pattern. "We'll teach you how to draw what you see," said they, "and you can do whatever you wish with the training afterwards."

The result was as might be expected. Four of each 100 persisted and the other 96 quit.

The system still exists, a statement which is startling when one realizes the improvement that has taken place in all other branches of activities. Perhaps the system was entirely satisfactory in the nineteenth century when an artist was an individual who painted portraits and landscapes to hang in some gallery or was a long-haired person in a dirty smock who worked on high scaffold in churches, splashing paint on people below as he created angels and saints on walls and ceiling.

NEW INVENTION

But 45 years ago the art of multiplying the artists' product by means of photo-reproduction was invented and people no longer had to go to galleries or churches to see the pictures. Art started in a new direction with the birth of reproduction. The illustrator of story and advertising appeared. An entirely new technique was made necessary to conform with the limitations of the engraver's processes and the artist who was willing to learn how to make his pictures for printers' plates found himself the possessor of an income far in excess of those previously enjoyed by members of his profession.

For the past several years, the advertisers in the United States have bought in excess of 15,000,000 pieces of art annually. A whole army of artists is kept busy producing this enormous quantity.

But most art schools failed to recognize the new art for advertising illustration. The result was that the same ratio of failures to make good persisted among art students.

BETTER TEACHING

However, a few schools, foremost among which is the Art Institute of Pittsburgh, recognized the new art and changed the time-honored curriculum. The idea of painters as instructors gave way to actual commercial artists who came from their studios where they illustrated the advertising of the country's great industries. Plaster casts of figures were replaced by living models. Every class was placed under the instruction of a supervising artist every session and not twice a week, as formerly. Actual commissions for drawings were brought in for class room work and the resulting money went into the students' pockets.

The results are extremely gratifying. Students' time has been cut down to two years and they leave school with a set of practical drawings of the same kind they will be required to do as practicing artists, instead of the usual charcoal pictures of casts.

Mr. Willis Shook, director of the Art Institute of Pittsburgh for the past eight years, is largely responsible for the success of his students. The first class numbered 10, while at present there is an enrollment of more than 400 each year, many of whom come from Canada and such distant states as Florida, Montana and Tennessee.

Meeting to Discuss Employment Problem

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Problems of the new industrial South, and a constructive program for stabilizing employment will be discussed at the twenty-third annual meeting of the American Association for Labor Legislation, which will be held at New Orleans, December 27-28, it was announced by Secretary J. B. Andrews at the association's headquarters here today.

Other subjects listed for discussion include the employment problems of the older worker; mothers' and old age pensions; maritime and mine safety; social consequences of injunctions in labor disputes, and the theory and administration of workmen's compensation laws.

RETAIL TRADE BETTER

Retail trade, particularly in holiday merchandise, is showing considerable activity and there has also been some improvement in the demand for wearing apparel in general, according to R. G. Dun & Co.

Jobbers of men's and women's clothing report business slow, such buying as there is being for filling purposes. There is not much activity in dry goods and notions. There has been somewhat better seasonable demand for hardware and automobile accessories.

While the movement of automobiles is rather quiet this month, registrations of new automobiles in November show practically the same number in Allegheny County as for November, 1928. The grocery trade is rather quiet while the demand for confectionery for holiday trade is fairly good.

OUTPUT LOWER

Industrial operations are at a slightly lower rate, with steel plants averaging about 65 per cent of capacity, which compares with 82 per cent at this time last year. There has been quite a good demand for radiators and heating equipment, with sales of sanitary products at a slightly lower rate than last year.

No particular change is noted in the demand for window glass, which continues below the seasonal average, while the movement of plate glass is somewhat lower than it has been recently.

There is a continued good demand for electrical equipment, while radio equipment is not quite so active. Production of crude oil shows a slight reduction, with the demand greater than a year ago.

COAL QUIET

The bituminous coal market continues rather quiet, with domestic demand somewhat better, but industrial demand is at a lower rate. Prices show practically no change. Western Pennsylvania grades of run-of-mine coal are quoted per net ton at mines as follows: steam, $1.25 to $1.75; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.65 to $1.75; steam slack, 80 to 90 cents, and gas slack, $1 to $1.10.

Collections continue to average rather slow.

Salaried Men Hold Most Insurance

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—That more than 60 per cent of the first $100,000,000,000 of ousstanding life insurance in force in United States companies is held by persons with annual incomes of less than $5,000 was revealed here yesterday at the twenty-third annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents.

The announcement was made by the Hon. Edward D. Duffield, president of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, Newark, N. J., who presented some results from an original six-months' survey, just completed, designed to show the extent to which the American people, who carry about 70 per cent of all life insurance in force in the world, rely upon that form of thrift in the creation of their estates. Approximately four-fifths of the married men included in the survey depended more largely upon life insurance than upon any other investment. The proceeds of life insurance policies constituted 70 per cent of their estates.

NEW MARKETS FOUND FOR STEELTEX

National Steel Fabric Successful in Selling Novel Building Product

Exceptional progress has been shown by the National Steel Fabric Company, subsidiary of the Pittsburgh Steel Company, in developing markets for "Steeltex," a new type of backing for plaster, stucco or cement.

This company is one of the largest producers of welded steel wire fabric or mesh used for reinforcing purposes. Through the ingenuity of E. L. Benedict, vice president of the company, assisted by engineers of his staff, this fabric has been combined with a heavy fibrous backing to create four types of steeltex reinforcement.

USED FOR PLASTER

Probably the most important of these products is Steeltex for plaster because of the tremendous quantities demanded daily by the building industry for interior plastering in all types of buildings. Steeltex for plaster consists of a welded galvanized wire mesh to which the backing it attached. The wires are spaced about two inches apart.

The backing is held in place by V-shaped steel stiffening ribs that give the individual sheets an almost board-like rigidity and simply the handling and erection methods while contributing to economy in the use of plaster for which this product is particularly notable. The sheets are nailed to wooden studs or clipped to the steep frame by means of attachment bars.

When the plasterer applies his first coat over the reinforcing fabric his trowel forces the backing a slight distance away from the wires, embedding them in the heart of the plaster slab where they function like the steel reinforcement used to strengthen concrete. The backing prevents any waste of plaster such as occurs with metal lath where the plaster must pass through the holes in the lath to form a key in the back. At the same time it adds to insulating and soundproofing qualities.

REINFORCES STUCCO

Steeltex for stucco and overcoating is similar in many respects to Steeltex for plaster, except that it comes in long rolls, uses a heavier wire mesh and a heavier backing and does not require the stiffening ribs. It is applied over the exterior of a new dwelling or directly over the old clapboards or shingles of an old building being remodeled, and gives the same reinforcement to stucco that its sister product gives to plaster.

The third member of the Steeltex family, that employed for the reinforcement of masonry facings, is still heavier than Steeltex for stucco, but is used in much the same manner. It is applied over the structural frame and then the brick or stone is laid up in front of the Steeltex. The mortar is forced around the wire mesh of the Steeltex so that the entire facing is bound together by the steel fabric while the waterproof backing adds much needed insulating and dampproofing properties.

The last member of this group, Steeltex for floors, is the heaviest of all both with respect to its steel fabric and the backing employed with it. This material is laid over wooden or steel or and roof joists and wet concrete is poured directly onto the backing which is strong enough to act as a form while the concrete hardense. The weight of the concrete naturally presses the backing away from the wires which thus become embedded in the slab in accordance with correct engineering principles.

STOCK PRICES MOVE HIGHER AT OPENING

Rally Continues Lifting American Can, General Electric, Radio Shares

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Stock prices moved higher at the opening of today's market, as the rally of yesterday afternoon was continued. International Telephone, American Can and American Smelting rose about 1½ points, and Radio, General Electric, Johns Manville, New Haven, New York Central, Woolworth and Standard Gas mounted a point each. Gold Dust sagged ⅝ of a point.

The upward movement continued at a moderate and quiet pace during the first half hour, with rails and utilities making notable progress. The bears seemed to have been quelled in yesterday's upturn, but operators for the advance were curtailed by the week-end recess, and the prospect of week-end liquidation before the close.

The weekly trade and industrial news, coming to hand over night, were fairly satisfactory, reporting continuance of the seasonal decline in industry and wholesale trade, but a high level of retail activity. Rumors that the Interstate Commerce Commission's rail consolidation plan would be published over the week-end stimulated buying of some of the Ky roads in the merger plans.

Pittsburgh and West Virginia mounted 6 points, Wabash 5 and Western Maryland, and Alleghany Corp. gained 2 points. Missouri, Kansas Texas, Union Pacific, Atchison and Erie were among shares moving up a point or more. General Electric, Columbia Carbon and A. M. Byers advanced from 3 to nearly 5 points, and issues gaining 1 to 2 included Eastman Kodak, North American, Columbia Gas, American and Foreign Power, Goodyear, Electric Auto Lite, and Sears-Roebuck. U. S. Steel mounted fractionally.

Auburn Auto dropped 5 points and rebounded 1. Gold Dust sagged a point.

Foreign exchanges opened firm, with sterling again nearing the gold point, touching $4.88⅛, up 1-16.

Surplus Is Problem

New York Bank Stocks

SURPLUS FUND INVESTMENT PROBLEM

Financial Public Tries Various Ways to Employ Accumulated Wealth

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Irrespective of the temporary ups and downs at the marketplace, the investment of surplus wealth continues to be an outstanding American problem as a phase of the nation's post-war career as a world creditor.

Especially since 1922, the financial public has been pressed with the obligation to find outlets for accumulating capital. For a time, individuals made a temporary disposition of such wealth by placing it with banks as time deposits, on which incidentally only 3 per cent in reserves is required, considerably less than half the average proportion of reserves required on ordinary demand deposits. The building up of time deposits over a period of years enormously stimulated the expansion of bank credit, and incidentally changed the character of commercial banking. In time half the resources of banks became tied up in securities and security loans.

SURPLUS USED FOR LAND

The next phase was to put surplus wealth into real estate, in which there was remarkable activity at rising prices at various centers of the country. The movement represents not only speculation in developed properties and in land, but also in a building boom, which has been waning for more than a year. The culmination of the vacant land boom came late in 1925 when the Florida bubble burst.

The next outlet for savings was the stock market. Curiously enough, the partly sophisticated public concentrated, particularly during the last year of the bull market, on a selected list of premier stocks. After years of experimentation, the public at last learned what to buy. And the recent late October-early November debacle revealed practical defects in the popular financial program. The public had learned what to buy, but not when to buy or how.

J. R. Edwards, Cincinnati investment banker, in a message to this column, said:

"The thought advanced by economists and others to buy common stocks, and thus share in the future prosperity of the United States is sound in theory, but some qualification of this statement should be disseminated to investors along the following line. Buy high grade common stocks with your SAVINGS FOR CASH and thus share in the future prosperity of the United States. In other words, cash purchases would not create an overbought market with the usual ensuing panic that always occurs."

MUST WATCH PRICE

It is of course true that the outright cash buyer requires less subtlety in timing purchases than the marginal purchaser, who must consider not only long term intrinsic value but also near term price prospects, since he intends to go into debt to hold his shares and the continuance of the loan is contingent on the avoidance of even a temporary price slump.

For the near term future, reduced stock prices will again continue to make shares attractive as an outlet for surplus funds. And bonds are coming into their own.

It will be salutary if the American business community can continue to show restraint in avoiding the use of excess capital or credit to inflate commodity prices.

After the present transition, surplus capital will doubtless resume its flow to alien governments and enterprises.

The recent correction in the Street has accomplished some mental deflation. A year ago, an inquirer asked if the brilliant self made Jones, statistician of a Wall Street firm, was to be made a partner. The head of the firm, paying a tribute to Jones' ability, said he would pay him twice as large a salary, but that he was too aggressive and too deficient in social qualities to become a partner. During the crash, Jones' brilliant judgment stood the firm in good stead. On January 1 next, he is to become a partner.

NEW MINES TO OPEN

Canada, among foreign countries, makes an especial appeal to American investors. The discovery of new mines in the Dominion of Canada has created from time to time an unwholesome speculation in Canadian promotions.

Charles Stewart, of Ottawa, in giving an authoritative survey of the mining outlook, said: "The non-ferrous metals—copper, nickel, lead and zinc—have lately attained rapidly increasing importance. Today their combined output exceeds in value that of coal, or of the precious metals, or of structural materials. And it is in respect to these metals that the Dominion's new mining projects promise the heaviest expansion of output in the near future.

"This trend in Canadian mineral development towards a larger share in the world's nonferrousu metal production and trade is highly significant. And the whole strength of non-ferrous metal development within the Dominion is now in process of being immensely reinforced by a series of great new mining enterprises which will enter the production stage in the early future."

The Christmas Business Here Is Fairly Good.

By B. C. FORBES

NEITHER the bulls nor the bears have had it all their own way this week. The bears routed the bulls quite disastrously on Thursday. But the bulls hit back vigorously yesterday. After doughty blows received and given by both sides, the advantage lay with the bulls at the close.

Many people, while expecting ups and downs, did not look for any such severe break as occurred on Thursday. Ten to twenty point losses strewed the list. Obviously, the pressure came mainly from professional bears.

The public is now on the buying side, but only timidly so. Which, all things being considered, is just as well.

Christmas shopping in New York has become livelier than many had expected. It isn't true that jewelers, even the most aristocratic of them, aren't doing any business. Women folks say, however, that the rush for the most expensive merchandise is not overwhelming.

To wage earners: Stay away from Detroit. The Detroit Chamber of Commerce has asked me to sound that warning throughout the country. Henry Ford's announcement of a $7-a-day wage started a rush to Detroit. Thousands of wage earners and their families have had to be sent back home. Detroit already has more workers than she can employ at the moment.

November and December are disjointed months automobile-wise. Manufacturers then switch over from old models to new. And inventory is taken. This usually entails laying off many men temporarily. This year larger numbers than usual have been laid off.

Hence the warning to workers in other parts of the country to stay away from America's motor mecca.

W. C. DURANT, I learned, has been far from idle recently in the stock market. The real story of his activities to turn the market when the weakness was at its worst would make interesting—and surprising—reading. From what I hear, Durant is still far from broke. International combustion was his bitterest disappointment. It has proved the sourest of lemons.

TRAGIC! New York's morning newspapers yesterday reported a speech made by Chellis A. Austin, president of the Equitable Trust Company—and the first editions of the forenoon newspapers recorded his death.

This 53-year-old banker was rated as among the ablest and most promising in the metropolis. He was the mainspring behind the recent Seaboard-Equitable Trust consolidation three months ago.

But he was more than that. He was a delightful, charming, human and humane fellow, a leader whom all his associates followed enthusiastically. Had all bankers been as democratic, as considerate as Chellis, the story of the banker with the glass eye would not have been hatched — the pleading customer, you may recall, thought he detected a suggestion of sympathy in one eye, but later discovered that it was a glass eye.

Peace to your soul, Chellis.

HENRY L. DOHERTY has given no intimation of hurrying back from Europe. He is quite satisfied with the way Cities Service and his other companies have been handled during the Wall Street crisis by his chief lieutenants. Cities Service has been purchased by so many persons during the bad break that it now has more stockholders than any company in the world with the sole exception of American Telephone and Telegraph.

THE place of honor at the New York automobile show next month will again go to Chevrolet. Chevrolet's sales have eclipsed in value those of every other member of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Before Chevrolet came so prominently to the front several years ago another member of the General Motors family, Buick, won this distinction year after year. It was because of the phenomenal record he made as Chevrolet vice president in charge of sales, that Richard H. Grant was recently elevated to the position of vice president of General Motors, handling all sales, service and advertising—probably the most important and best-paid sales job in the world. Dick Grant is only 51.

GOLD exports do not need to cause the slightest concern. Europe needs the gold. We don't. The better off Europe becomes the more she will buy from us.

Frick-Reid Supply Changes Trade Name

The Frick-Reid Supply Corporation announces that after January 1, 1930, it will discontinue the name of the Frick and Lindsay Company in the operation of its mill, mine and Roebling departments. The distribution of these products will be conducted under the name of the Frick-Reid Supply Corporation.

This action was not brought about by any change in policy or personnel, but was for the purpose of facilitating the conduct of the business and to avoid confusion arising from the use of two company names.

CANADA TRADE CONDITIONS HEALTHY

C. P. R. Chairman Says No Serious Let-up Resulted From U. S. Market Debacle

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific railway, in an interview with a Boston News Bureau representative, declared that the Canadian industrial situation has not been seriously affected by the recent financial debacle in the United States and is generally healthy.

Mr. Beatty said that decline in gross of Canadian Pacific, however, has been very serious due to lack of grain movement.

He estimated gross earnings in November were down about $8,300,000 from November, 1928, and that for December they would be off between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 in comparison with the same month last year. Gross in November, 1928, was $24,358,663, and in December of the same year gross was $21,092,097. The report of October earnings showed a decline of $6,863,000. Prior to September, however, earnings of Canadian Pacific were running ahead of 1928.

C. P. R. DIVIDENDS

President Beatty stated that in spite of this shrinkage in recent months, Canadian Pacific would easily earn all charges and the 10% dividend on the common stock with a reasonable surplus over.

He estimated "special" income would be a little better than last year when it reached a new high figure of $12,677,684. Special income is derived from the varied activities of Canadian Pacific, including steamships, hotels, telegraph lines, interest and dividends on securities, etc. Steamship business this year has been good on the Atlantic, he said, but not good on the Pacific. Hotel business has been very good, but sales of land have not equaled those of 1928, due to unsatisfactory crop situation.

GRAIN CROP SMALL

"The situation with respect to grain has been very unusual," said Mr. Beatty. "The wheat crop was about half of that of last year, but it was of wonderful grades. There is a great deal more grain in storage than usual because there was a heavier carry-over. But it is expected that all of this grain will move in due course.

About the same area has been planted to winter wheat as was planted last year. One alleviating influence was a fairly heavy and wet snow-fall prior to the frost in the western provinces and this has given the much needed soil moisture.

"Our industrial situation has not been affected nearly as much as one would expect by the recent Wall street events. While I think this financial difficulty will have its effect for a few months, I do not think it will be of long duration. Given an average crop, our situation should be quite satisfactory by next summer."

Mr. Beatty said Canadian Pacific had recently built four new hotels, among them the Lord Nelson at Halifax, and had spent $30,000,000 for hotel development in the past five years. Two big steamships are under construction, one, the Empress of Britain, of 40,000 tons to develop 24 knots and to cost $10,000,000, and the other, the Empress of Japan, a ship of 22,000 tons, to cost $8,000,000. Additions to the fleet in the past 10 years have involved $95,000,000.

CROP VALUES LOWER

OTTAWA, Dec. 14.—Total value of the principal Canadian field crops of 1929 is estimated at $986,976,000 by Dominion Bureau of Statistics against $1,125,003,000 in 1928. Wheat is valued at $345,380,000 against $451,235,000.

EXTRA DIVIDEND DECLARED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 14.—General Fireproofing Company has declared an extra dividend of 25 cents per share on common stock, in addition to the regular payment of 50 cents, and $1.75 on all preferred, all payable January 1 to holders of record December 20. The company has 326,000 shares of common outstanding.

This year the company will pay $2.25 per share on its common stock, equivalent to $9 per share on the old stock, which was split four for one a year ago. In 1928 the company disbursed $7.25 per share in dividends on common.

"We have the largest volume of unfilled orders on hand in the history of the company," advises President George C. Brainard.

New Financing Is Lower for Week

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—During the week ended December 13, new financing aggregated $100,233,161, entirely bonds, against $171,202,500 in preceding week, of which $170,658,000 was in bonds and $544,500 in stocks and $162,426,475 in week ended December 14, 1928, of which $109,841,475 was in stocks and $52,585,500 in bonds.

Since the beginning of year new bond financing totaled $3,192,363,069 against $4,763,881,840 in 1928 period. New stock financing for year to date totaled $3,025,956,782.

ODDS AGAINST PLAID IN GAME TODAY

FOOTBALL, in one of its closing chapters, today presents an unusual situation on the Pacific Coast, in the fact that the team chosen to carry the banner of the Far West in the annual Tournament of Roses game first meets an eleven from the same city that is the home of the machine which will be encountered on New Year's Day. For Southern California, billed to grapple with Pitt's undefeated stars on January 1, at Pasadena, this afternoon takes the field in Los Angeles against another Pittsburgh outfit, Carnegie Tech.

John Dreshar.

It will be the first time in history that a team selected to represent the coast in the Rose Bowl classic has met two teams from one city in any part of the country in its closing two games, or even in the same season.

A new distinction thus falls to Father Pitt in one of his proudest football years. Not only once, but twice, and in succession, at that, the whole country will be watching the test of his gridiron products in battles of vast importance against the outstanding team of the Pacific slope.

THE situation also affords two chances for the triumph of Pittsburgh's colors in far-away fields. If Capt. John Dreshar and his Carnegie Tech mates win today the result will peel some of the gilt off the New Year's Day match, and lessen the glory of any similar victory that Pitt may score later. But at least this city will be in a position to feel assured of getting nothing worse than a split, no matter what may happen in the game to follow.

On the other hand, if the Skibos fall this afternoon, there will be a chance for the Panthers to step in later, avenge the defeat of their fellow townsmen and uphold Pittsburgh's football prestige. Of the two, Pitt appears to have the better prospect of success. The 1929 season has not been one of Carnegie Tech's big years, whereas it has been an unusually brilliant campaign for the Panthers.

THE Tartans are not as strong as the Blue and Gold wearers, nor are they as rich in reserve power, and replacements are certain to count for a great deal in the face of the weakening effects of a strange climate.

Things do not look so good for the Skibos today. The odds are against them and they are under a heavy handicap. But even if they are defeated, they may be depended upon to make a showing that will be a credit to them and to their city.

Gus Suhr.

GUS SUHR, the new first baseman of the Pirates, shapes up as a better prospect than ever in the light of some of the things disclosed by the Pacific Coast League averages for 1929, which have just been compiled. Runs win ball games, and it is encouraging to note that not only did Suhr lead his league this year in number of tallies scored, but that his remarkable total of 196 runs in 202 games is the highest except one in the entire history of the Coast circuit. The only time it was ever beaten was in 1925, when Tony Lazzeri, now of the Yankees, was credited with 202 trips across the plate. That was the season Lazzeri made 60 home runs.

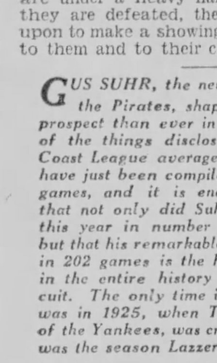
THE official averages confirm the Suhr figures recently published in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Gus played through the complete schedule for San Francisco without missing a game, and in 785 times at bat in 202 contests he made 299 hits for a total of 526 bases, his wallops including 51 home runs, 62 doubles and six triples.

Suhr also batted in 177 runs, stole 19 bases and made 12 sacrifice hits. He ranked fifth in the league in the batting averages, being beaten out only by Ike Boone, of the Missions, with .407; Smead Jolley, of San Francisco, with .389; Bill Rumler, of Hollywood, with .386, and Elias Funk, also of Hollywood, with .384.

BOONE'S average of .407 is the highest ever made in the 27 years of the Coast league's existence. Ike made 323 hits, just two under the league record set by Paul Strand in 1923, his safeties including 55 homers, 49 doubles and eight triples, a total of 553 bases.

Jolley, who goes to Donie Bush's White Sox, made 314 hits, and is the first Coast League player to pass the 300 mark in safe blows in two seasons. Fred Haney, of Los Angeles, was an easy leader in stolen bases, with 56. Buzz Arlett, of Oakland, drove out 70 doubles, but fell five short of Paul Waner's all-time coast record. Mickey Finn and Gordon Slade, whom the Mission league club tried to sell to Pittsburgh recently, batted .347 and .302, respectively; Jack Sherlock and Pete Scott, ex-Pirates, hit .336 and .335.

SOME definite announcement concerning the rearrangement of the Pitt football schedule for next year may be made at any minute. The slate was tentatively completed some time ago, calling for nine games with Waynesburg, West Virginia, Western Reserve, Syracuse, Notre Dame, Nebraska, W. & J., Carnegie Tech and Penn State in the order named. Ohio State was not to have been met again until 1931. Then Ohio State found it would be possible to give the Panthers a game in Columbus on November 15, and some shifting around was necessary to make room for this engagement. That date had been allotted to Carnegie Tech, so the problem was to move the Skibos to a different place on the schedule and drop one of the other games booked. It is said that a final decision is on the point of being reached. The schedule change, when announced, is likely to cause considerable surprise.



Jimmy McLarnin.

JIMMY McLARNIN ran true to form and and expectations when he knocked out Ruby Goldstein in the second round of their bout in New York last night. Goldstein himself carries a dangerous punch, but he did not measure up to McLarnin in all-around class, ring courage or ability to withstand a hard wallop, and the only question had appeared to be how long he would last.

What McLarnin accomplished had been done before, as Ace Hudkins knocked out Goldstein in four rounds in 1926 and Sid Terris put him away in one round in 1927, but that should not be allowed to detract from the credit due Jimmy for his victory last night. It was another neat bit of work, that, taken in connection with his other performances of late, makes the impression stronger than ever that he will eventually wear the welterweight crown.

ELMER LAYDEN has definitely turned down the offer made to him by Georgetown University to take the place of Lou Little as head football coach there next year, and the action is gratifying to followers of the Dukes, who see in the continued stay of Layden a promise that the rapid rise of the Bluff school on the gridiron scale will not be interrupted.

At the same time there is a feeling that Layden never should have been called upon to make such a decision, and that Duquesne never should have been given any cause to worry about the possible loss of a coach who had been signed in good faith to a contract having four years more to run.

NO COLLEGE wants to keep a dissatisfied coach, contract or no contract, but there is no excuse for any other school causing such dissatisfaction. Georgetown had no legal or moral right to make an offer to Layden while he was under contract to TECH READY FOR U. S. C.

FREDERICKSON TO LEAD TEAM FROM BENCH

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Manager Frank Frederickson will try out the "Rockne system" of coaching when his ice Pirates meet Lionel Conacher's New York Americans at Duquesne Garden tonight, and if the system succeeds as well in hockey as it did in football the Bucs will turn in their second victory of the campaign.

Lionel Conacher

At the start of the 1929 football season Knute Rockne, Notre Dame Coach, became seriously ill. Showing great courage, he quit his bed and directed his team from a wheelchair when his gridders engaged in an important battle. The system, born of necessity rather than chaice, proved to be one of merit, for the South Benders "played for Rock" so well that they finished the season undefeated.

TESTS ROCKNE SYSTEM

Today Frederickson faces a problem not a great deal different from the one that troubled Rockne and he has decided to copy the Rockne solution in an effort to duplicate the Rockne results. Accordingly, this evening he will quit a bed to which he has been confined since Thursday morning, remove the ice packs from his right knee and use crutches to drag a leg rendered useless by torn ligaments to the players' bench at Duquesne Garden. From this bench Frederickson will direct his men in the same manner that Rockne did from his wheelchair, and if the local puckmen "play for Freddie" as well as the South Benders "played for Rock" he will have no cause for complaint.

DUEL DENIED FANS

The incapacitation of Frederickson, who will be out of the lineup for at least 10 days, not only deprives the Pirates of the services of their star center, but also deprives the fans of the duel for which they long have been wainting—the duel between Frederickson and Lionel Conacher, the only two player-managers in the National League.

Both Freddie and the former Pirate defense star have been taking their bumps in the form of defeats, but Conacher's injuries have been confined to the mental variety, and he is primed to play plenty of hockey in an effort to upset his former mates. Tonight's game will mark Conacher's debut as a manager here.

MILKS AT CENTER

Frederickson today announced that Hib Milks, who has had considerable experience as a center, will be at center in the starting front line tonight, and that Jerry Lowrey will step into the left-wing position vacated by Milks.

Briden will sub for Lowrey at center on the second front line, with Jarvis at left wing and White at right wing. Smith and MacKinnon will be at defense and McCaffrey, Barton and Manners will do their stuff when replacements are deemed necessary.

Both the Americans and the Pirates regard the game as one of the utmost importance, for they both realize that this is their big victory chance. Until Tuesday they were tied for the undesirable "cellar honors." The Americans now are one game ahead of the Bucs and eager to continue their climb, and the locals are equally eager to snap their losing string.

EVENLY MATCHED

In nine games this season the Bucs have scored 11 more goals than the Americans, but the New Yorkers have held the opposition to 16 less goals than have the locals. Indications are that the Pirates will sport an advantage on the offense, but the visitors, with Roy Worters, former Pittsburgh star, in the nets, will enjoy a defensive edge.

In four games last season tonight's foes played each other to a standstill, each winning two decisions. Because the cellar berth

GRIMES' SALARY MAY HINGE ON VANCE CUT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Dazzy Vance's yearly salary appears to be the barometer which directs Burleigh Grimes whenever the veteran spitballer goes into conference with a baseball magnate. Grimes holds that he is just as valuable to his club as his former teammate, and he makes no attempt to hold back his feelings in the matter.

Consequently, if the disappointing Vance of last season suffers a big reduction in his salary, it may be easier for the Pittsburgh moguls to get Grimes into line.

Dazzy drew down $25,000 for his work in 1929, although he had one of his worst years in the majors. His hard-fisted business methods appeared to score over the loose-leaf system in the Flatbush, but Dazzy may find it hard to get a renewal of the figures; it is predicted that he will have to take a cut.

Grimes is one of the highest-salaried players in either league. During his long career as a Robin, the Wisconsin Wildcat often had to go to the mat with the late Charlie Ebbets before signing up.

FANS CHEER STRIKEOUTS

Day in and day out Grimes seems to be a more reliable pitcher than Ol' Dazmarine, but Dazzy cashed in on his strikeout sidelight. Baseball still has countless fans who prefer to see a batter go down over the whiffing route than to see a brilliant fielding play on the part of one of the supporting cast.

The spectacle of Dazzy fanning a dozen batters in the game gave Vance a flavor with the followers of the game that probably was reflected in the turnstiles—and the blond Nebraskan doubtless used his drawing power when he argued on salary matters. Grimes, the while, was a more efficient pitcher and one who was ready to tackle anybody at any time, but Burleigh achieves his victories in a less spectacular manner. There

Hack Wilson to Be Ring Foe for Art Shires

CHICAGO., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Promoter Jim Mullen said yesterday he had closed a match between Hack Wilson, Cub outfielder, and Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires, battling White Sox first baseman, for a four-round bout to be decided early in January. Mullen agreed to give Wilson $10,000.

Never in the history of the ring has a newcomer been in such demand as shy Arthur. Promoter Mullen had 42 challenges the last time he counted, and the telegraph companies were considering making the route to Mullen's office a regular beat.

BENEDICT, HURT IN CRASH, OUT FOR SEASON

George (Ganzy) Benedict, Duquesne University basketball captain, and almost certain captain-elect of the 1930 football team, has been lost to the Bluff court team for the remainder of the season.

SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

He was seriously injured in an automobile accident late yesterday afternoon. Benedict, who suffered severe lacerations on the left side of the face, was said to be in a slightly improved condition at the Mercy Hospital at an early hour this morning. A physician predicted Ganzy faces a long confinement due to loss of blood.

The automobile in which Benedict was riding, accompanied by Capt. Aldo (Buff) Donnelli and Sammy Pratt, star end, of this year's football team, and driven by Ruben Slutsky, a Duquesne student, collided with a taxicab and crashed into a telephone pole at Northumberland and Forbes streets. Benedict alone suffered injuries.

WON'T ATTEND FETE

The quartet was returning from a banquet held at the Rankin High School, where Jock Rosenberg, former Duke luminary, is coach, when the accident occurred. Benedict had arrived in the city at 12:30 yesterday afternoon with the Duke courtmen from their basketball invasion of the midwest, having played Iowa, Chicago Loyola and Elmhurst.

Ganzy was to have attended the Duke football banquet in the William Penn Hotel next Tuesday night, being first in line to be elected 1930 captain to succeed Buff Donnelli. It is unlikely he will recover sufficiently to attend.

Aldo (Buff) Donnelli, captain, and Sammy Pratt, star end, of this year's football team, and the driver, Reuben Slutsky, a Duquesne student, escaped injury. Aside from being lost to the Dukes' court team for the remainder of the season, Benedict faces a long confinement due to loss of blood, according to a physician who examined him in Mercy Hospital.

Warm Weather Is Steffen's Only Worry

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Football teams of Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, and the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, line up here at 2 o'clock this afternoon for an intersectional game.

Coach Walter Steffan, of Carnegie, said the warm weather was his only worry.

"Our last game was played on an ice-covered field against New York University," he commented. "Today we play Southern California beneath a warm sun. If my players can hold up under the climate and the Trojan running attack, don't be surprised if we hand the boys a nice little upset."

BOLSTER IN COLUMBUS

Calvin L. Bolster, veteran local football, basketball and baseball official, will speak tonight to the Middle-Western basketball coaches at Ohio State University in Columbus.

50,000 TO SEE SKIBOS FIGHT ON COAST

The Trojans are in fine physical trim, the best they have been all year, they tell me, a fact which must not be overlooked in pre-game stock taking.

POOR AERIAL DEFENSE

The weak link in the Trojan armour appears to be its poor defense against passes. Notre Dame threw two touchdown ticket heaves through this defense, and California also took to the air to upset the local's applecart. Neither of these teams, California or Notre Dame, have as well laid and as nearly perfected air games as Tech. Tech's is built on deception with emphasis on the "decept." It is the sort of football that may add a third blotch to the Trojan slate.

The Trojans have demonstrated their power very well, indeed, this year, having run up a total of 400 points. If that isn't power, it must be very close thereabouts.

Carnegie's morale is fine, better than I've ever seen it before. The boys have been talking and thinking victory all week, not even allowing the attention-stealing pleasures of the sight-seeing and train-riding to distract their minds from the big purpose of the whole affair—a win over U. S. C. History will prove that when a Tech team is hopeful that it is determined; that when it is determined it is confident and that when it is confident, get out from under when the roof falls in.

KENNEDY MAY START

A definite starting Tech lineup will not be available until the very time for the kick-off. Coaches Steffen and Waddell have decided to use Red Kennedy in the backfield in the event Tech receives the initial kick-off. He will be started in place of Dutch Eyth. Otherwise Dutch will be in there, paired off with Slats Flanagan. McCurdy, of course, will be at quarterback and Joe Morbito is the best bet for the fullbacking; at least at the start.

On the line, Pete Flanagan and John English, the rangy ends, will cavort at the terminals. On the right side of the line, Capt. Johnny Dreshar will play guard and Bob Schmidt tackle. On the left, if Tank Highberger is fit, he'll be at tackle with Bob Fletcher at guard. With Tank on the side lines, Fletcher moves out to the tackle spot and either Andy Yerni or Stauffer play guard. Ducanis is the boy who'll snap 'em back from center. And a very good snapper-back he is.

Southern California figures to start with Francis Tappaan, the all-America end, and Arbelbide at the wings; Hoff and Anthony at the tackles; Baker and Galloway at the guards, and Dye at center.

The backfield will be composed of Russ Saunders, at quarter; Pinckert and Edelson, at the halves, and Musick, at fullback. Musick is right, I'm not trying to get off a fast one.

Capt. Barrager, leader of the Trojans, probably will watch the first part of the game from the bench. Handicapped by an injury or two, Barrager has been unable to hold his job, which is a very embarrassing situation for a captain.

50,000 EXPECTED

The crowd is expected to total about 50,000. Unfortunately, the edge has been taken off this game by the Tournament of Roses contest, which brings together Pitt and U. S. C., New Year's Day, in Pasadena. It was thought at first that a sell-out crowd would be on hand, but local folks tell me that if there are 50,000 at the ball game, that Tech and U. S. C. will extend to each other mutual congratulations.

Dexter W. Very, the very, very efficient Pittsburgh official, will be the big boss of the game, serving in the important capacity of referee. Very is spending his time getting ready for the game by walking up and down the floor of his room, next to the one held by this correspondent. Arthur Badenock, Chicago, is to umpire, Walter Eckersall, Chicago, will be field judge and Bruch Kirkpatrick, Occidental, (not Accidental), linesman.

The Tartans will wear their new uniforms, and will make an impressive showing in their red jerseys with the white shoulders and red and white hose. If they can't win the ball game, they may at least walk away with the sartorial honors of the day.

But don't be surprised if they win. . . They are planning to and its hard to upset the plans of a judge and an insurance man.

PANTHERS NOSE OUT INDIANA FIVE, 35 TO 31

PITT BATTLES NORTHWESTERN TONIGHT

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Dec. 14.—Pittsburgh court men opened their invasion of the West with a fast and furious 35-31 victory over Indiana University here last night. The score was tied 16-16 at the end of the half.

HYATT STARS

Pitt opened the second period with an attack that soon had them in the lead, 28-21. Capt. Branch McCracken, of Indiana, broke through the tight Pitt defense three times in succession to bring the score to 28-27, with Pitt still in the lead.

Capt. Hyatt, all-American forward, then began a barrage of the basket to put Pitt in the lead, 34-31, with three minutes to play. He ended the scoring with a free throw, making the score 35-31.

Indiana tried a number of long shots in an effort to tie the score, but they failed.

McCracken was outstanding for Indiana with six field goals and three free throws. Hyatt led the Pitt scoring with five field goals and three free throws. Both teams had a tight defense, but Indiana failed in losing possession of the ball by wild passing. Pitt played for the ball and seldom failed to cover after field attempts.

FIVE LEAGUE SOCCER TILTS

By TOM BIRKS.

Five district soccer games are carded today. Three will be played in the District League, and two in the Beaver Valley loop.

The sensational race in the District circuit makes all of the games interesting, and with four of the outfits bunched at the top of the heap, there is reason to feel plenty of action will ensue.

Clan Douglas, undefeated, will meet the Pittsburgh Celtics at the Leslie Park enclosure. These outfits met in the cup ties a few weeks ago and the Celtics pulled one of the big upsets of the season by beating Douglas.

At Swissvale, Union Switch meets Crafton Heights, and while the dope favors the Switch, it should not become overconfident.

In the Beaver Valley League, Sewickley meets Beaver Falls, and New Castle hooks up with Midland on the latter's field.

SEVEN SCORE 63 AT AVALON

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Wending their way through 18 holes of sub-par golf, seven entrants in the Catalina Island $7,500 open yesterday turned in cards of 63, three under perfect figures, to lead the favorites in the first round of the second annual tourney.

Absent from this list of leaders was Horton Smith, defending champion; Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente National titleholder, nd Walter Hagen, British open champion.

In their stead stood Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, Cal.; Wild Bill Mehlhorn, New York; Henry Cinci, Bridgeport, Conn.; Chet Beer, Bakersfield, Cal.; Charles Guest, Los Angeles; Herbert Walter Gary, Ind., and Neal McIntyre, Indianapolis, Ind.

Hagen turned in a 66. Leo fell into bad ways on the par-3 fifteenth, taking a 6 for a 67 card, and Smith was in the 67 class as a resul. of golf which hovered about perfect scores.

W. P. I. A. L. HEADS MEET

The members of the W. P. I. A. L. will hold their regular league meeting today at Fifth Avenue High School. Several important matters will be discussed.

RUDOLPH SETS TWO NEW CUE RECORDS

DETROIT, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—A new world record for high run and best game, as well as for the fastest game ever played in a world championship pocket billiard tournament, is in the possession of Erwin Rudolph, of Chicago, today. Another mark, that of an average of 19.73 for 375 points made in three games also is claimed for this sensational cueist, who defeated Spencer Livsey, of Los Angeles, by 125 to a minus 2 in four innings in the Recreation Building here last night. Rudolph made an unfinished high run of 111, breaking the mark of 101 made by Ralph Greenleaf against Jerome Keogh in 1924. He also broke the best game mark of five innings, which was held jointly by four other players. He equalled the five-inning mark against Joseph J. McCann in his second game. Rudolph also claims the record for speed, running out the 125 points in 37 minutes.

PERFECT SHOOTING

Another remarkable feat which was pointed out by Referee Ferguson was the fact that Rudolph did not miss a shot.

He ran 15 in his first inning, then played safe. He played safe in his second try and in his third he made a deliberate scratch, which was a forfeit, when he shot into the cushion and away from the balls. Livsey followed with a safety, then Rudolph pocketed a ball which escaped the bunch, and from that time on he was master. Rudolph is in undisputed possession of first place with three victories and no defeats. Marcel Camp, Detroit youth, is second with three triumphs and one reverse. But in all of Rudolph's games he simply outclassed the opposition. Only 65 points have been counted against him, 51 by Onofrio Lauri and 14 by McCann. He ran out his first game in 10 innings, his next in five and his third in four.

NATALIE, CAMP WIN

In the two games played yesterday afternoon, Pasquale Natalie and Camp were the winners. Camp defeated McCann, 125 to 124, in 25 innings, and Natalie turned back Lauri, 125 to 65, in 20 innings.

Three games are on the schedule for today. In the first game this afternoon Greenleaf meets McCann, and in the second Lauri plays Livsey. In the night game Taberski will engage Natalie. The standing of the players:

	W.	L.	High Run
F. Rudolph	3	0	111
M. Camp	2	1	108
J. Taberski	2	1	59
P. Natalie	2	1	34

The Great Shires To Ask $25,000 Of White Sox

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires wants $25,000 to play first base for the White Sox next summer—or else—

Shires, whose contract last year called for $8,500, demands the big increase, or, he declares, the American League will lose its greatest first baseman.

"When I beat a few more of these alleged fighters, I will be ready to talk terms with Mr. Comiskey," he said. "I want $25,000 to play that first sack for the White Sox, and if I don't get it, I will keep on fighting. My contract last year called for $8,500, but by the time I got through paying fines, and salary was deducted for suspensions, I didn't have more than $5,000 left. And I've got to get it back."

SALARY HINGES ON VANCE CUT

is nothing dramatic about Vance's pitching, but there is something quite theatrical and that is what counts with many fans.

MAY CITE SMALL PROFITS

The failure of the Pittsburgh management to cash in with goodly profits may militate against Grimes and his salary ideas.

The trade angle may be revived in the event of a deadlock between the parties of the first and second part. At the present time the Pittsburgh officials do not entertain any thought of swapping the star, but they might change their views if the money squabble becomes serious.

Meantime Grimes will hie himself back to his Wisconsin home where he roughs it with Pie Traynor, the Pirate captain.

Chillysauce

Managerial responsibilities have caused a furrow or two on the brow of Casey Stengel, but the cares have not affected that inexhaustible well of humor. Bill McKechnie and others had many a laugh over Casey during the progress of the meetings in New York. Skipper Bill is still laughing at one of Casey's moves in a game with Kansas City.

In John Peters, former Philly catcher of more than 200 pounds, and Tom Sheehan, once a Pirate pitcher, the Blues have a fine battery, but when this pair gets on the bases, the real base runners have to turn their backs to the diamond. Well, Casey's Mudhens were playing the Blues and the situation showed Big John on third and Big Tom on first.

And then right out of a clear sky, the two Meyers brothers tried a double steal. The Toledo infield could not recover from the shock in time to stop the play which went over. Stengel was playing right-field. Casey grabbed his forehead and started to leave the field like a drunken sailor.

"I've seen everything there is to see in this game now so I guess I'd better quit," sighed Stengel.

Charles Hargreaves, Pirate catcher, was in attendance at the annual sessions. There is much to indicate that the veteran will be traded by the Pirates, but he is likely to find another major league berth, as catchers are very scarce.

Jack Hendricks is said to be headed for a coaching job in Brooklyn, provided the Flatbush tangle is adjusted. Jack's successor, Dan Howley, was a busy person at the New York gatherings. But, Dan, like many another magnate, did not seem to get anywhere in the matter of swaps.

Two high-class attractions are offered the followers of the Allegheny County League tonight, the Duquesne Lafayettes, defending champions, opposing the Homestead Ackermans in the Homestead Elks' Hall, while the Franchinas go after their second straight league victory at Charleroi, opposing the Charleroi Lions. Both games bring together evenly-matched teams, and two fine battles are in store for the followers of the teams. The Ackermans have Whitey Littell back in their line-up, the former Morry star having accepted an offer to play with the Homestead passers. With Moon Klinzing and Whitey operating at the forward posts, the Ackermans possess two of the best scoring passers in local professional basketball ranks.

Gyp Wunderlich

The Duquesne Lafayettes, beaten on their home floor last Tuesday by the Goldensons, will be out tonight to obtain revenge by taking a fall out of Moon Klinzing and his mates. The Ackermans defeated the Goldensons after the South Siders scored a well-earned victory over the Lafayettes. Gyp Wunderlich, former University of Pittsburgh star, will be at center for the Lafayettes.

The Franchinas have a chance to step right up among the leaders by winning from Charleroi. The Lions have suffered three straight defeats and may prove a tough puzzle to the locals on their home court.

FINTEX BEATS TURNERS

Eddie Losman's field goal as the timer's final whistle sounded caused the Morry-Fintex five to nose out the Allentown Turners, 26 to 25, in their heated Allegheny County League battle last night. Woofty Wild was the shining light for the Turners.

The Mt. Washington Triangles trimmed the Lou Sher Five, 51 to 27, in a preliminary tussle.

Irene Kaufmann Settlement walloped Falcons No. 8, 59 to 30, to win their sixth victory in the Central League.

Penn Hi-Way met defeat at the hands of the Pittsburgh Silents, 51 to 38, in their Greater Pittsburgh circuit battle.

In the only Lyceum League combat, St. Henry's was set down by St. John's by a 43-to-35 tally. The lineups:

BASKETBALL RULES QUIZ

PLAY NO. 18.

Four personal fouls have been called against Lucas, of the Navy, but the scorers do not notify the referee of the fact, and play is resumed with Lucas in the game. Three minutes later this is discovered.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER.

The points made during the period that this player was ineligible count, as well as the time played, but immediate substitution for offending player is made as soon as the attention of the referee is called to the fact. This should be done after the mistake is noted, when the ball is dead or in the possession of the team whose player is disqualified.

MALCO IS 'WINNER'

SAYLOR VICTIM OF WEIRD DECISION

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Three of Santa Claus' helpers were on the job early at the Moose Temple last night and demonstrated that they are in fine fettle for the holiday rush by handing out one of the swellest gifts of the season to Tom Malco, of Soho, at the end of his 10-round bout with Young Saylor, of Charleroi, before a capacity crowd.

Punk decisions may come and punk decisions may go, but you'll have to travel far and wide and visit many places and see a lot of things to match this lulu perpetrated by two judges and a referee.

Over most of the route it wasn't even a contest, with Saylor left-handing Malco silly and making the recent conqueror of Hans Roberts in the same ring look ridiculous as he tried to lead and missed by a foot or more and ran into left swings to the body and jabs to the head and then found himself tied up in the clinches; and yet, at the finish, to the utter amazement of the fans, who remained to boo and yell for the "robbery," Saylor did not get a single vote of the three officials. Judge Frank Ferris and Referee Jim McLaughlin both voted for Malco and Judge Jock Simco compromised on a draw.

MALCO OUTCLASSED

In only three rounds did Malco, short and squat and at a disadvantage in reach, make any sort of a showing. He won the second round, in which he managed to get to close quarters and pound the body, after having been cleverly outboxed by his opponent in the first round, although the latter's left eye began to trickle blood at the bell in that session, and then took a cuffing until Saylor began to tire late in the ninth round and Tom, in desperation, plunged headlong to the attack and came from behind to even up the round.

In the tenth and final round, Saylor, tired and with the bout sewed up barring the possibility of a knockout, played it safe, keeping on the move at a distance and holding on in the clinches. He was just beginning to fight back when Malco moved into a low left swing and went down claiming a foul. He was not badly hurt and got up to resume fighting a few seconds before the bell ended the fight. His gameness in continuing with a chance to take the easy way out drew him a deserved round of applause which turned to a raspberry chorus when the decision was announced.

The fans had the officials well on the pan as they stood around dazedly discussing the off-color verdict before going home and a new deal is needed for this arena if disorder is to be avoided in the future.

Malco weighed 146¾ pounds for the fight. Saylor scaled 148½. James (Red) Mason assisted Jim Buchanan in Saylor's corner, an odd working combination in view of their past differences.

PROFIO STOPS BROWN

Joe Zink, of McKees Rocks, was injured in training and unable to go on with Dominick Profio, of Cecil, in the semi-final, Johnny Brown, of Lawrenceville, filled in as an eleventh-hour sub and put up a good but losing fight from the start, the referee finally halting it in the fourth round after Brown had been down three times in each of the last three rounds. The fourth round lasted 1 minute 24 seconds. Brown weighed 148½ pounds and Profio 143.

Carl Montebano, of Braddock, 153½ pounds, outscored Georgie Chambers, of East End, 157, despite a strong, hard-hitting finish by Chambers, and merited the decision, which, however, went unanimously to Chambers.

The judges also kicked around the opening bout, which they agreed was a draw, while the referee rightly found for Paul Balint, of the North Side, against Frankie Lanz, of Sharpsburg. Lanz won the first round, but Balint carried all of the others on his more aggressive work and harder punching. He fought himself out and fell down twice from his own efforts in the final round, but there should have been no question of a margin in his favor. Balint weighed 127¾ pounds and his opponent 125½.

Bill Schuster, the announcer, notified the crowd that George Panka and Harry Williams, heavyweights, have been matched for the main bout next Friday night. This bout at first was turned down by the commission on the ground that Panka is not a main bout fighter, but later was approved.

The commission also has approved the Jimmy Belmont-Tiger Joe Randall windup as a holiday attraction for Motor Square Garden Christmas afternoon, despite the fact that Belmont was decisively beaten by Farmer Joe Cooper in the same rin; last Monday night and a main rout of a much higher caliber would appear to be in order for such a special occasion in the city's largest arena.

Between Rounds

Pete Sanstol, one of the best bantamweights in New York, boxes Mickey Doyle in the main bout of a show in Brooklyn tonight. Joey LaGrey, formerly of Johnstown, boxes Vincent Sirect and Benny Schwartz meets Sammy Tisch in 10-rounders at the Olympic A. C., in New York.

Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, will box the veteran Frankie Schoell at Buffalo on December 26.

Six amateur boxing bouts will feature a smoker to be held by the Sixth Ward Republican Club in Eintracht Hall, Lawrenceville, tonight.

BIG CARD IN ERIE

An all-star card has been arranged for a Christmas basket fund in Erie next Friday night. Billy Jones meets Rosy Rosales, Joey Goodman boxes Johnny Kusic and Jimmy Reed takes on Sammy Harris in 10-round bouts, while Virgil Kincaid boxes Honey Boy Shimar and Red Jadderberg opposes Young Jack Sharkey in six-rounders. There's a real card for the fans.

Sam Weiss, Allentown light-heavyweight, boxes Phil (K. O.) Kaplan at Allentown, Pa., next Tuesday night.

Juard Maraz boxes Mike Dugan and Frank Ellis meets Frank Erne in six-round preliminaries to the Howard Maxey-Eddie LeRoy eight-round bout at Dubois Tuesday night.

There will be no boxing show at McKeesport next week, but one will be staged there the following Thursday.

Westinghouse Gym Team Keeps Title

Westinghouse High School's gymnastic team, coached by Joe Harsky, captured its ninth consecutive City League championship yesterday when it won the title meet on the Taylor Allerdice High School floor. The Silver Lakers totaled 494.5 points, Schenley High was second with 475.6, and Allderdice was third, with 382. Westinghouse Juniors also won the junior crown.

Individual honors in the meet went to Cappazzoli, of Westinghouse, Kholos, of Allderdice, was second.

LAYTON KEEPS LEAD

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Although Johnny Layton was outscored by Welker Cochran, 63 to 50, in 46 innings last night in the tenth block of their 600-point exhibition three-cushion match, Layton closed the day with a lead of 500 to 448.

M'LARNIN STOPS GOLDSTEIN IN SECOND

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Blue-eyed Jimmy McLarnin, that flaming kid from the West, last night crushed temperamental Ruby Goldstein, pride of the Jewish race, with a searing two-round knockout that turned 19,000 of the faithful into a howling, raving mob of worshipers.

In a battle that lived up to all the promises of the raucous ballyhoo, the socking Celt from Vancouver packed into the short-lived struggle three minutes and 52 seconds of swift, stunning action that sent the customers reeling from the arena.

Three times in that short time, McLarnin, the cold killer, smashed the Hero of the Ghetto to the floor, first for a count of nine in the opening round, again for a nine count at the start of the second session, and finally for a toll that could have been a hundred without giving Ruby any opportunity to carry on the hopeless struggle. It was as brilliant and fearful a punching exhibition as Madison Square Garden has ever seen.

Though beaten senseless, Ruby finally won the faithful with his bravery and gameness under fire. He lost to one of the greatest of modern-day punchers but found his highest praise.

The youngsters were equally matched in weight, Goldstein weighing 144½ to 144 for McLarnin. The crowd paid $109,000 for the entertainment.

KAPLAN VICTOR

Louis (Kid) Kaplan, former featherweight champion, from Meriden, Conn., defeated Andy Callahan, Lawrence, Mass., lightweight, in a slow, but grueling 10 round semi-final. Andy, making his Garden debut, held like a pair of guards on the one-yard line after flooring Kaplan for a count of three in the opening round. Callahan was floored for nine in the sixth and was severely cut across the nose in the ninth. Both weighed 136½.

Canada Lee, smart Negro welterweight, won the decision from Andy DiVodi, of New York, in a fast 10-round match. Lee weighed 145¼; DiVodi 145½.

Danny Devlin, a fierce punching middleweight from Allentown, Pa., scored a decisive victory over Tommy (Tuffy) McGuinness, of Scotland, in a six-round setto that found the invader on the floor for nine counts in both the second and sixth sessions.

FIGHT "NO CONTEST"

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The jinx that trails champions in the Boston Garden fell on Jackie Fields, the welterweight titleholder, here last night in his catch-weights bout with Gorilla Jones, of Akron. They struggled for almost seven rounds before Referee Joe O'Connor ripped them apart and ordered them to their corners, declaring the fray "no-contest."

O'Connor claimed that Jones was not putting up his usual exhibition. During the previous rest period, he had warned the Negro against pulling his punches.

The setback to Fields was another link in the chain of mishaps that have overtaken champions in Boston Garden during the past year. Andre Routis, Joe Dundee, Fields' predecessor, and Bushy Graham each was soundly trounced by a supposedly inferior opponent in non-title contests.

O'Connor's verdict, however, did not meet with the approval of Eugene Buckley, member of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, who was at the ringside. He said he thought the battlers tried to give an honest exhibition, but that Jones' lack of aggressiveness made it a dull affair.

SCOZZA FOULED

DETROIT, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Lou Scozza, of Buffalo, light-heavyweight, won on a foul in the fifth round of his scheduled 10-round bout with George Courtney, of Oklahoma City, here last night.

Long's Sport Comment

Duquesne, and it is high time to put a stop to this unethical maneuvering of which more than one college has been guilty in recent years.

THEY'RE making a joke of the boxing game in Chicago. After the build-up put through against the unknown Dan Daly in order to make a drawing card of Art Shires, White Sox first baseman, they're going to put Shires on with George Trafton, a professional football player next Monday and on top of that it is planned to match Shires with Hack Wilson, Cub outfielder.

None of the three—Shires, Trafton and Wilson—would have any business in the ring with a real fighter. The bouts are only money-making schemes thought up by unscrupulous promoters who would turn the fistic sport into a racket. The Illinois Boxing Commission is lax in its duty in failing to put its collective foot down on such false pretense, and in approving such absurd matches it is not giving the Chicago boxing patrons the protection it is sworn to give them.

Hack Wilson.

THE extent to which Butch Henline has has dropped as a catcher in the estimation of major league managers was shown yesterday, when, despite the fact that the Braves, White Sox and others are known to be hunting high and low for backstops, the Brooklyn receiver was waived out of the big show and released to Toledo. Along with him went Win Ballou, pitcher, who was shipped to Los Angeles.

A trip to the minors is no new experience for Ballou. This pitcher, who was seen here as a relief hurler for the Senators after Stanley Coveleskie had been taken out of the fifth game of the world series of 1925, has been up and down several times. He looks good in the minors but lacks something when he faces major league hitters. But Henline until a couple of years ago was looked upon as a valuable man. It seems that his value was due to his hitting ability rather than to any extraordinary catching prowess, and when his punch faded he had little else to recommend him.

THUGS SOUGHT IN HOLDUPS

Police today were searching for bandits who held up an East End grocery store and a confectionery on the North Side last night.

Three armed men entered the grocery store of George Rooker, at 601 Lincoln avenue, forced Rooker and three customers to throw up their hands and rifled the cash register of $143. The trio escaped in an automobile driven by an accomplice.

William Bell, confectioner, of 550 East North avenue, was robbed of $117 and his watch valued at $30 by two armed men in his store. Bell furnished police with good descriptions of the thugs.

Three armed Negroes held up two pedestrians within 15 minutes on the North Side last night.

Their first victim, W. E. Overturn, a railroad engineer, of Punxsutawney, was robbed of $5 and a $75 watch at Corry and West General Robinson streets.

Fifteen minutes later, Ben S. Barber, of 717 Ridge avenue, was accosted by the same trio, police said, and robbed of $25 and a ring valued at $8.

A Negro purse snatcher robbed Mrs. Alice Bullen, of 212 Emerson street, of her purse containing $7 in Liberty avenue, near Thirty-seventh street.

CHILD, 7, GIVEN TO FATHER

A father is entitled to the custody of his motherless daughter, Judge James B. Drew decided in Common Pleas Court in awarding the custody of Jean Stanger, 7, to her father, William B. Stanger, and his second wife, of 1835 Fifth avenue.

The order was entered after a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus procured by Oliver J. Cooper and Jennie E. Cooper, his wife, seeking to regain custody of the child. Mrs. Cooper is the sister of the child's mother, who died in March, 1927.

Stanger remarried three months ago, his second wife having a 6-year-old son. December 6 Stanger took Jean, who continued to live with the Coopers, from school to his home. The Coopers alleged, and Stanger denied, that the child has been placed with them permanently.

Mrs. Stanger, the stepmother, declared her love for Jean and said she would give it the care and affection she gave her own son.

Duquesne Light Co. To Erect Station

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Dec. 14.—The Duquesne Light and Power Company plans to erect a $40,000 sub-station at Parkview, near Oakmont, to furnish Oakmont industries with power.

The sub-station, work on which will start immediately, will take the high voltage from Colfax plant in Cheswick and transform it to a lesser voltage for distribution to the industries. Construction will be done by company employes. The plant, to be built of brick, is expected to be completed early next year.

His back fractured in a cavein of a ditch in which he was working in Ambridge, Peter Silipe, 50, of Ambridge, was rushed to the Valley Hospital at Sewickley, where he was pronounced dead, the coroner's office was informed.

Tech-Southern California Game on Air Today

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

"TECH, TECH, DEAR OLD CARNEGIE TECH" will ring in the ears of thousands today as they tune in on the Carnegie Tech-University of Southern California game on the West coast. Paul J. Miller will give us a play-by-play description over KQV starting at 5:30 o'clock.

Those who heard Rosa Raisa in "Aida" last Saturday night will not miss Edith Mason and a brilliant cast in "Faust" tonight over KDKA at 10 p. m. The entire second act will be broadcast direct from the Civic Opera House in Chicago.

Don Sandros, commonly called "The Spanish Nick Lucas," will entertain for Pickering Playtime, WJAS at 7:30.

The Nit Wits spent all summer and fall studying the sleuthing methods of Sherlock Holmes. They will reveal what they learned when WJAS goes on the air at 6:30.

Outstanding in the DX broadcasts of KDKA this evening will be Christmas messages to Dr. George M. Sutton, of Bethany, West Virginia, who is located at Southampton Island in the Far North, making a special survey of bird life. His wife, Mrs. Lola Miksch, will play two piano selections, the first a march and the second a Christmas number which she composed several years ago and which has always been played in the Sutton home on Christmas morning. Two daughters of the Suttons, Evangl, a student at State Teachers Institute, Indiana, Pa., and Dorothy, an instructor at Virginia Medical College, Richmond, Va., will be interested listeners. The program to Dr. Sutton will be broadcast at 11:05 p. m.

Capt. Wilkins will receive his news through KDKA at 11:30 and ten minutes later the broadcast will be directed to Commander Byrd and his crew in the Antarctic.

Add spat-wearers: the fellow who used to fill this space we can't remember his name and Sergt. Vincent Bunch, the state trooper who is offering a free fellow not to meet in a dark alley . . . Toby Vansas's McKees Rocks friends, who are tossing a banquet for him at Charters Heights on January 14, are also discussing a trust fund to help set up Toby in a dentist's office when he graduates . . .

EDDIE GOULDING IS VERSATILE FELLOW--HE ACTS, DIRECTS, WRITES AND WHISTLES

By DOROTHY HERZOG

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14.

EDDIE GOULDING answers to the description versatile more than any mortal I've met. Eddie not only writes original stories and adaptations, but he directs pictures, writes stage plays, books and music. He is also guilty of having been an actor. As a lad, Eddie studied voice with an Italian in Rome. Or was it another Italian city? Be that as it may, the teacher taught his pupils the art of whistling. Eddie can even whistle High C. He composes—he wrote the songs in "The Trespasser;" also the theme song in Dolores Del Rio's initial talky, "The Bad One," et cetera. He composes songs via whistling them. Quite a gift.

Anna Q. Nilsson is wintering at her Malibou Beach home. Anna has lived in comparative seclusion since the unfortunate accident that resulted when she was thrown from a horse and broke her hip bone. Anna was progressing splendidly until the doctors discovered her leg had not been set as skillfully as it should. It's a darn shame Miss Nilsson has undergone so much grief. From the selfish viewpoint, this bureau resents it as her injury has kept her off the silver sheet. The screen misses the Nilsson personality.

Anna Q. Nilsson

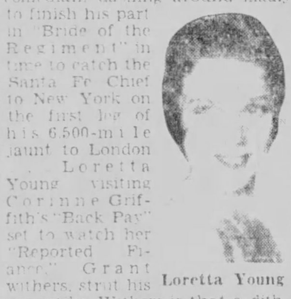
Comes Denial From Miss Owen

IN no uncertain words, Catherine Dale Owen telephoned to deny the story run in this colyum that she is engaged to Prince Yucco Troubetsky or that she is going to marry him. Miss Owen declared if this were true, she certainly would not keep it a secret. Inasmuch as Catherine was terribly upset over the story, this bureau apologizes for making an announcement that should it be uncorrected, would cause her and her family embarrassment.

Shayle Gardner—he's the detective in "Three Live Ghosts" is a strapping big fellow. Shayle tips the scale well over two hundred pounds. He decided he should reduce. To that end, he took up horseback riding. For three weeks he rode an hour or so daily. He weighed at the end of that time. And discovered that he had gained eight pounds. That the horse had lost 27. Chagrined, but not routed, he sticks doggedly to horse backriding. Despite the sharp-eyed little stable boy saying to him each time he appears for a canter: "Sorry, Mr. Gardner, but all the good horses are being used."

Lupino Lane London Bound

SCREENALITITES: Lupino Lane, the pint-sized British comedian, dashing around madly to finish his part in "Bride of the Regiment" in time to catch the Santa Fe Chief to New York on the first leg of his 6,500-mile jaunt to London . . . Loretta Young visiting Corinne Griffith's "Back Pay" set to watch her "Reported Fiance," Grant withers, strut his romantiks. Withers is that a-dithered. He has been told he must dye his hair its natural color (it's black but red—not a pun, please—for Corinne's flicks). He must do re-takes with Billie Dove on an earlier outloud. Grant's friends naturally make him feel dandelion when they wager the dye will turn either green or blue or purple this time . . . Inasmuch as Bela Lugosi portrays a plastic surgeon in "Such Men are Dangerous," featuring Warner Baxter and Catherine Dale Owen, he visited Dr. Joseph Ginsburg, a Viennese plastic surgeon now in town, to learn a few tricks. Ginsburg has promised to appear on the "Such Men are Dangerous" set and offer advice in person, should this be advisable. . . . Lost, Another dog. This time, Bob Armstrong's. Bob is offering a reward for the return of his wire-haired fox terrier. The canine was presented to him by the London cast of "Is Zat So." Something should be done about individual dog catchers in this village . . . Ken Maynard is entertaining Mr. and Mrs. George Ehrenberg of Dallas, Texas. Ken served under Ehrenberg during the World War. He was in the engineering section of Camp Knox. . . . Jack Holt is another flick star who started forth as an engineer.



Loretta Young

There do be talk floating about whisper-like that Dennis King will bring "Cassanova" to the talky sheet for Famous Players. Mr. King is he who recently completed "The Vagabond King," an operetta that is reckoned to have put Mr. Famous back a million or two. Ah, well, art for dollars' sake . . .

QUEST STIRS EAST LIBERTY

Searchers for East Liberty's most popular teachers gathered at 9 o'clock this morning for their second theater party at the Sheridan Square theater. Supporters of many teachers were on hand, each urging the qualities of his favorite against those of another's.

Rivalry, as shown by the gathering this morning, is becoming intense. Speculation as to the winner of the Christmas gifts offered by East Liberty merchants is mounting high.

Authorized East Liberty merchants are aiding in the search by giving their customers votes for every 10-cent purchase they make. These votes may be cast for any teacher the customer likes best.

The winning teachers will be awarded valuable Philco De Luxe radio sets as Christmas gifts. The campaign will close Christmas Eve and the sets will be awarded the day after Christmas.

Fifteen teachers will receive radios. East Liberty boys and girls, their parents and friends, and friends and relatives of teachers in Pittsburgh schools are looking for the winners.

Man's Will Penciled On Birthday Card

A card, inscribed "Husband's Birthday," bore the penciled last will and testament of Charles E. Hill, 1152 South Negley avenue, who died December 1, and admitted to probate in the office of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell. "If I check out, all I own is yours, Mary," were the words of the testament, signed "Charlie." Mrs. Mary Hill thereby receives the estate, valued at $2,500, and is made executrix.

Officials to Speed New Pennsy Train

Mayor Charles H. Klein, James Rea, president of the Chamber of Commerce and W. H. Stevenson, president of the Western Pennsylvania Historical Society, will take part in ceremonies attending the inauguration of the Pennsylvania Railroad's new afternoon passenger train between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia tomorrow. The train, to be known as "The Duquesne," will leave both cities at 2:15 p. m. arriving at 10:15 p. m.

On Deck

June Clyde is one of the girls who are "on deck" in the picture version of the musical comedy, "Hit the Deck," soon to be released.

STANLEY HAS MAN HUNT, TREES

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

These Northwest mounted police may always get "their man," but they don't always get "their woman" at least, not in the movies. Take Monte Blue, for instance. He's one of those heroic "redcoats" down on the Stanley screen and is in love with a girl of the Northwest, in the person of that Mexican wildflower, Lupe Velez. But he doesn't get her. Instead, Grant Withers, as a young railroad surveyor, rides off with her into the sunset, sunrise, or whatever it is at the fadeout.

All this is in the picture version of that stage play, "Tiger Rose"—a version that is a conglomeration of free-for-all fights, big trees, a killing, a man-hunt, a theme song, a ride over rapids, those love moments, thudding horses' hoofs, talk by human players and barks by Rin-Tin-Tin. Also there is a storm, done in best movie style. The rain pours, the lightning flashes and the thunder rolls.

THE MOVIE WAY

What purports to be the "punch" angle is that Redcoat, who loves Heroine, goes man-hunting for a murder suspect, who happens to be the fellow she really loves. And Redcoat finally gets his man—only to let him go again when he finds how much he means to the girl. Which is hardly the way it is done in the Northwest. But we suppose it is O. K. for a movie.

Mr. Blue ineffectively affects an Irish accent. And Mr. Withers looks out of place among the big trees. The vivacious Lupe does her best at the heroining" and tosses out a song as an added attraction. H. B. Warner plays a crazy doctor who is killed, and with his demise the best of the acting passes from the film.

MINUS MEGAPHONE

The stage show is "Jazz Mania." Its biggest event is the appearance of Dick Powell, M. C., withOUT his megaphone. He sings "Mother Machree." The show also includes three dancing brothers who can dance.

Bernie Armstrong and David Broudy are on the bill.

Among Trees

Monte Blue, as a policeman, goes on a man-hunt among the big trees of the Northwest in "Tiger Rose," new film in the Stanley.

Hal Skelly is featured with Evelyn Brent and Chester Morris.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: Does a Red Menace make itself apparent in the United States at the present time?

JULIA BUCKLEY, Duquesne Heights, secretary: "I don't think it possible for a Red Menace to ever control America. It is too remote. We have so many good folks who are staunch Americans, that they would never permit such a state of affairs. Any Bolshevik uprising would be suppressed before it even had a start. That's the way I feel about it.

Julia Buckley.

ELIZABETH ROSSA, stenographer, Millvale: "There's no possible chance for a Red Menace in America and I don't think there is one now or there ever will be. People think too much of the American government to ever permit any such thing. Persons of such radical tendencies are well in the minority. It is highly improbable they'll ever turn into the majority."

Elizabeth Rossa

MARY KIERNAN, Edgewood, stenographer: "The spirit of Bolshevism is only apparent in the minds of a small group of foreigners who refuse to accept the precepts of American government. The great majority of the public do not concur in this flaunting of ideas of good government. They'd put down in a minute any attempt to create a Red Menace or any other thing, for that matter, which would have for its aim the downfall of the U. S. government."

Mary Kiernan.

H. C. BUHRMESTER, West End, superintendent's chief clerk: "I don't think there is any remote possibility of a Red Menace in America. Little uprisings have flared up in certain localities but they have been merely tempests in teapots. The present form of American government is too firmly entrenched in the minds of most of us to ever permit any such situation to burst forth."

H. Buhrmester

P. L. MAHAFFEY, Wilkinsburg, art director: "The thought of a Red Menace is only the product of a vivid imagination. It is a depressed state of the minds of some people more than anything else. Our American citizens are too proud of their existing government to permit any such menace to make itself apparent. Bolshevist ideas are all wrong, anyhow."

P. L. Mahaffey

MRS. MARGARET WAGNER, North Side: "If there is a Red Menace in America most of us don't know of its existence. I'm pretty sure that persons who make such statements are 'talking through their hats.' True, there are quite a few men and women Bolsheviks in the United States who would like to create a new form of government, but they are so much in the minority that it is impossible for them ever to do so."

Mrs. Margaret Wagner.

Gilbertorials

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 14.

These are happy days for Uncle Joe Grundy here. He has been standing out in the lobby of our Capitol for 40 years, and finally asked to come in and sit down.

And he will make 'em a valuable man. When they resume the investigations of lobbyists, put him on the Senate committee and he will know exactly how to trap 'em. You know the old saying: "Set a certain party to catch a certain party, both of the same industry."

And his rise has been unparalleled in American history. Why, less than six months ago, I used to get hundreds of letters: "Who is this Grundy you are always talking about in your dispatches? Is it a real character or one of your inventions?" Now here he is better known than Mayor Walker or Clara Bow.

Yours, WILL.

Miss Pat — by Elenore Meherin

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Mary Patricia Dawn, young and beautiful, is in love with Guy Elliott, handsome aviator. Guy is perfecting a plane which old William Bryce is to manufacture. Pat meets Bryce's widowed daughter-in-law and wonders if Guy is intrigued by Barbara's beauty. Bryce sends Tom Burns, a workman, to jail for attempted robbery. Pat has gay times with Lee Templeton, young college student. Pat's father is stricken with pneumonia and dies. The family considers giving up the big house because of the heavy expenses. Guy, hoping to help the Dawns, tries to urge Bryce to manufacture his plane. He learns the old man has lost a fortune. Mrs. Dawn gives her life savings to Bryce to invest. Guy, fearing Bryce may use the money to cover his own losses, tries to recover it. Bryce reluctantly surrenders the bonds, swearing vengeance on Guy. He discontinues financing the airplane factory, but holds Guy to his contract which prevents another concern from selling Guy's plane. Billie Bryce is kidnaped. The same day a stranger makes off with Guy's plane with Pat in it. Guy disappears, the third person to vanish. Detectives find a few of Billie's hairs in Guy's abandoned automobile. Bryce receives a ransom note saying Billie will die unless $20,000 is paid. Bryce follows instructions given in the note and places the money at a designated spot. The money vanishes in spite of the fact that detectives have been watching the place. The kidnaper, however, fails to return Billie. Detectives discover that a dog like Guy's carried the ransom money away. The dog leads a detective to Guy, who says he has been lost in the canyon since he was forcibly put there by unidentified men. He is placed under arrest, charged with the kidnaping.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

THEY had trapped their man at the scene of the crime. They "had the goods on him"—had him "cold."

This man's dog carried the ransom box through the flume. His automobile had driven up to Lafayette Square and driven away again with little Billy Bryce. In this auto hairs of the child were found on the mat.

His plane was missing. He wore a brown suit and a soft tan hat.

The whole case was clinched, for the police, by the presence of a strong motive for the crime. On that very Monday morning their prisoner had an open quarrel with William Bryce. In the presence of a score of men he had threatened to "fire back and with dumdums." He knew the grandfather's love for the child; knew that any menace to the boy would bring William Bryce to his knees.

To police, goaded by public clamor, the proofs were conclusive. Guy Elliott had kidnaped little Billy Bryce, collected the ransom and then, in the very moment of triumph, had lost his nerve or his sense of direction. He had failed to make a get-away. The child was hidden and starving, perhaps. Or, by now, he might be dead.

This was their theory. They poured a hot-shot of ridicule on Guy's account of his own imprisonment. Bound, gagged and kept in some hole for a week!

Then who had trained his dog? Who had brought him to the ransom scene, and why? If another were involved, that other had magnificently escaped. Why should he bother to hand a victim to the police? Why should he pick on Guy Elliott?

Nonsense! They had their man. They gave accounts of the capture to the newspapers. They elaborated their theories.

Guy, they said, had a confederate with whose aid he planned to put over the "perfect crime." They would use Guy's machine. Guy's plane, and would even carry off Pat to make it appear that Guy had nothing to do with it. No man would be stupid enough to so obviously turn suspicion on himself by abandoning his machine on the open highway. It would of course, appear that Guy had been victimized: that he, too, had been kidnaped.

So the confederate had taken the plane, Pat and the child. He was holding them until certain that the ransom was secured.

Guy was to remain in hiding with the dog until the ransom was paid and possessed.

The two men would then meet. The ransom would be split; the confederate escape.

Pat and the child would be left to wander about. At the same time Guy, who of course wished to return to his home and his position, would reappear. He would arrive in this disheveled, incoherent condition and with the tale of his own imprisonment. The girl and the child would corroborate the story of the Mysterious Kidnaper—the Brilliant Phantom swooping down from the skies like a greedy eagle and carrying off men, girls, babies.

The abandoned plane, the machine and the return of Guy would give color to the story.

But—something had gone wrong. Guy failed to make the get away. And the confederate, interested only in the ransom, still held the girl and the child. What this confederate might be doing to them—might already have done—no one could know.

This angle whipped public interest to white heat. A young girl and a little boy were held captive by a criminal—perhaps a fiendish one. What was he doing to them? The chance that Guy might have some inkling of their whereabouts made the public blindly infuriate. They aided the police in their efforts to break him.

The three detectives kept him sitting at that table in the captain's room firing question until he sank down limp and exhausted. With pitiless insistence they went back over the week of his alleged imprisonment; they extracted repetitions of his ride to the hills on the night the ransom was taken.

He became incoherent. They gave him a cup of coffee and began prodding afresh. Hour after hour until he was sobbing with rage and weakness.

From their questions he knew that someone had stolen Barbara's child—that bright little golden-haired kid who had come up and given him a nudge and said, "You're wicked—you tell lies!" Someone had stolen Billy Bryce and sent word that the child was done away with.

He got up and leaned with his whole suffering weight on the table. He cried out:

"Great God—do they think I did this! Why would I do it?"

Half wild, he begged them to bring the mother to him. She would know that he hadn't and couldn't do this thing. He asked for Bryce. Bryce, too, would know that Guy Elliott was incapable of the deed.

In these hours they kept from him the word of Pat's fate. When he became incoherent he called on Pat to vindicate him. He said softly:

"Pat—tell them—"

He lapsed into semi-consciousness with her name on his lips. She would come rushing through whole world to clear him as he would have rushed to her.

They would not let him sleep. Then he asked for friends . . . fellows who had gone to college with him and who would stand to him now.

Through the whole tortured night he told and retold the same story. The details were these:

He had been in a small room, damp, cold and poorly ventilated. He woke up there some time after that Monday afternoon. How long after, he didn't know. He had a terrific headache and felt dopey. He was lying on a mattress, stripped, but with a blanket thrown over him.

He tried to cry out, but the gag was securely fastened and the helmet kept it in place. He worked along the mattress, trying to loosen this helmet. After what seemed hours he got it shoved to the side.

This gave him some hope. He sat up, found that he had a certain freedom, and cautiously, the chain about his legs dragging, began to move about.

He shoved along the wall, feeling his way with his shoulders. He had a wild hope of coming upon a peg or a nail. On this he would catch the helmet's strap and break the gag loose. Infuriated when a painful search revealed no means of accomplishing this, he began to fling himself against the wall. He made loud, thumping noises. The handcuffs and the chains rang.

Immediately someone spoke. To his astonishment the voice was a woman's:

"Stop that! One sound more and you'll be chained without an inch of freedom. The noise of thunder won't bring anyone to your aid. There's not a soul for miles. Obey and you'll be treated decently. Get this straight; you're being held for a purpose.

"The gag will be removed when you show that you understand resistance is futile. One outcry and the gag will be replaced. We have the power to enforce our will. Nod if you hear and understand. Nod twice if you are ready to comply."

The voice had a peculiar, metallic ring. It was low, but very definite, and the words delivered without hesitance.

Then he heard someone moving about with slippered feet. The voice came again:

"I'm going to feed you now. You're to sit perfectly quiet on the bench to which you'll be led. If you shout when this gag is removed, you'll be simply and permanently silenced. That's all."

The person came over, shoved him to a bench and removed the gag.

His throat burned. It was difficult to swallow. He managed to say:

"Take the blind from my eyes."

He received no answer. He was given soup and milk, pushed back to the mattresses and a heavy blanket thrown over him.

Whether the person who did this was man or woman he couldn't say. He thought it was a man. But it was a woman who ordered:

"Remember! Not a sound Don't fling yourself against these walls. I'm on guard. I've a pistol ready. You'll be snuffed out and no one will ever know what has become of you."

He was doped and his head frantically throbbed. After what seemed an eternity of restless tossing he fell into a heavy slumber.

When he awakened his captor was in the room with a bowl of milk. Without explanation the gag was replaced. Slippered feet moved from him. All the movements appeared to be those of a man; the voice was always that of a woman.

"Don't struggle. Later the gag will be removed again."

This procedure was repeated endlessly. In the night, so he judged it, the gag was removed. In the day it was replaced.

At first he felt certain that he would soon be rescued. He had friends who would leave no stone unturned to reach him; they would track him to the ends of the earth, as he would have tracked them. His disappearance would be mysterious, of course. But the fellows who had accomplished it would surely have dropped a clue. It would be found. He bore up in the wild waiting for this.

Then came the hour, after blind and now despondent days, whether day or night, he knew not, that his captor appeared and told him he would be released. For the first time he was fed bounteously. The coffee had a strong, bitter taste. He was thirsty and drank two cups.

The woman spoke:

"Tonight you will be released. Unharmed. But follow orders. Sit perfectly quiet while you are shaved and dressed. I have a gun and will use it at the slightest move. After you are dressed you will be led to an automobile. You will be driven to a certain place and freed. You will be safe if you obey."

The helmet and gag were removed, but not the bandage from his eyes. He was washed and shaved. A man, he felt certain, performed this office. While being dressed, his hands and feet were alternately chained to the bed.

Blindfolded and again gagged he was led to a machine. It was driven, he estimated, about three-quarters of an hour. He and his captor then walked up hills. A man—he felt certain—this companion was.

They halted. His companion put hands on his shoulders and pushed him to a sitting position. He felt very sleepy, almost unable to move, and did not resist.

The helmet and gag were removed. A handkerchief that smelled of chloroform was thrown over his face.

This was all he knew until he awakened just before sundown on what he thought must be the next day. He was free.

"BLIND MAN'S BLUFF"

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

TENDER-HEARTED Gloriette, Annette, Cosette, Susette, Babette and Jeanette cannot pass him by—the beggar. Poor beggar—"blind Love." Squatting by every highway in the land. When he gets home, throwing off the patch, emptying the cup, cutting didoes with his little angel dog, with the clearest eyes, the best seeing, when there are no lovers about, and RICH—my word!—as many another beggar is.

And yet to be really pitied, the brave, funny, sentimental, philosophical little god. Poor and rich at the same time. Blind as a bat, and clairvoyantly seeing. Gay and meloncholy. Romantic, roving, home-loving—and home-leaving!

Aren't you glad, rich-man-poor-man Cupid, that all the pretty "ettes" in the world, Gloriette and Cosette and so-and-so, cannot pass you by, believe in you, and give to you of their riches? For what happens when a cynical Lorette comes along, who has lost her faith in the appearance and pretentious of Love and a Man, pats one foot, snaps her teeth and her pocketbook tight shut, and says through her nose, with a sad and mirthless laugh: "AH-HA! and HA-HA! Do I give again? NO. Once I gave. You are a bluff. You are not what you seem!"—what happens then? Why—the world gets a jog in its smooth-spinning whirl, as though it had bumped against another star. And all the little cherub Cupids weep and beat their heads with their paddies.

The world rolls smoother for the belief of La Femme in Love—and a man. Even if sometimes she finds her own particular Love who begged for her heart does not, when he has it fast, NEED it after all.

NELL BRINKLEY.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Purnell Steps Into the Breach and Efficiently Saves Madge

HURRIEDLY I explained my dilemma to Purnell, the colored bell boy of whom Lillian had said, "There is nothing he can't and won't do," and he promptly proceeded to live up to her encomiums.

"As I understand it," he said when I had finished, "the floral decorations have not arrived and when they do you wish me to unpack them and lay them out so that it will take but a few minutes to put them in their various receptacles."

I took a firm grip upon my risibles and nodded, while Purnell, with an appraising eye, looked around the small trunk room into which I had taken him.

"Will you need this room for anything else tonight?" he asked.

"No."

"Then this will do very nicely. I will put a table in here on which I can lay the blossoms, and have some pitchers of water ready in which I can place them. I am off duty at 5 o'clock and then I will come directly up here. If you could show me the different receptacles in which you wish to place the flowers and about how many in each and the quantity of green. I could have them all laid ready to your hand."

"They are not ready yet," I replied, "but when you come at 5 o'clock I will have everything ready for you. But if they should not come at all—a friend ordered them for me and I do not know the name of the florist—"

"I think I can get whatever you wish," he said quietly, "if I just know the color. Perhaps you have a bit of cloth or ribbon of the shade you desire which I could match."

My tensed nerves settled into ease. There was a sureness about the ludicrously ceremonious little man which gave me the precious assurance that no matter what happened Edith Fairfax should not gloat over any discomfiture of mine.

"Yes I have, if the flowers do not arrive."

"I am sure they will, though," he said with the ready optimism of his race. "I will go directly to the delivery room when I go down and see that they are sent up the instant they arrive."

"Thank you so much, Purnell," I said, mentally doubling the tip I had meant to give him for the evening's work.

"Thank you, Missis Graham," he said, stressing the pronoun as he backed out of the door. "It is always a pleasure to me to serve a lady of the real quality."

He bowed himself out, and when the door was safely closed upon him I slumped in helpless laughter against Lillian who had come into the small room just in time to hear Purnell's valedictory.

"Didn't I tell you?" she demanded when she regained her own speech. "Isn't he the most delicious thing you ever saw? But he's as canny and capable as he is comical—ain't I alliteration's artful aid, angel?—And I think our troubles are over."

She was a true prophet. When we went to our rooms to dress for the dinner everything in the living room was in readiness except the candles. I even had dispatched Purnell for some emergency candles to be used if the ones Edith had ordered did not arrive in time. They were not the shade I wanted, but at least they did not clash with my color scheme. Fortified with them and with Purnell's assurance that he could purchase roses at the last minute, I gave my whole attention to my dressing, realizing when I had finished that not for a long time had I looked better than in my gown of palest green and silver, selected because I knew it would blend with Mary's and my color scheme. For a long moment I hesitated over my jewel case, my hand hovering over the exquisite pendant of jade, the most elaborate gift Dicky ever had given me. With the remembrance of that other necklace of imitation jade at the time he had camouflaged his gift to Edith Fairfax, I drew back my hand, renewing my determination never to wear either of them. Then my mood changed

When Lillian turned from her mirror she took a step forward with shining eyes.

You'll knock them all for a goal," she said admiringly. "That is the most adorable rig."

"If I hadn't been taught to say 'thank you,' to a compliment," I began.

"But you have," she retorted. "You're a picture yourself." I said slyly, "in that black lace over the gold slip and your amber beads."

"Thank you," she grinned just as Purnell's knock sounded on the door.

"The flowers and other things are all ready for you," he said, even as the telephone shrilled behind me and Lillian answered it.

"Ask her to come up," she said, and hanging up the receiver, made a dash for the bedroom.

"It's Ede," she said. "Here, get on your apron and get busy with the decorations. I'll attend to darling Edith."

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Golf-Widowlogues

"WHEE-EW I'm a total wreck!" breathed Mrs. Green, sinking into a chair, and reaching a nervous hand for a cigaret. "I've been taking a test for an automobile license! And believe ME, if John doesn't give me that car for Christmas—I'll make him eat turkey for a week!"

HELEN ROWLAND

* * *

"He will!" soothed Mrs. Divot, reassuringly. "But, thank heaven we don't have to take a test before we get a marriage license!"

* * *

"That would be easy!" retorted Mrs. Green with a short laugh. "A man can usually be run by intuition—and a simple twist of the wrist. No modern woman is afraid of a man—but every woman is a little AFRAID of a machine! There is something so—so un-human about it.

* * *

"An automobile cannot be wheedled or coaxed or bluffed," like a husband. It takes you so LITERALLY! It never allows for the fact that a woman may be undecided or may suddenly change her mind.

* * *

"When you push the accelerator by accident, instead of the brake, it LEAPS forward, instead of slowing down as you meant it to do. And when you make a right-hand turn instead of a left-hand turn, it goes right into a ditch, without stopping to argue with you."

* * *

"I know what you mean," said Mrs. Divot, sympathetically. "Your automobile doesn't UNDERSTAND you!"

* * *

"No," sighed Mrs. Green. 'Any Reno judge would agree to that. But, that's the difference between a machine and a man. You can't EXPLAIN to it, or weep on its shoulder, or speak to it sharply or kick it under the table. It never learns to obey the look in your eye or to know the meaning of your smile, or to recognize the dangerous tone in your voice."

* * *

"Well, I know a lot of men who are like that," said Mrs. Divot. "But, like automobiles, they can be scientifically handled and kept running straight, if you don't get panicky. The trouble with a woman is, that she is so apt to get panicky, when she finds herself in traffic, or comes to a sudden turn.

* * *

"The thing to do is to feel deep down in your soul, 'You may be bigger and stronger than I am, Big Boy, but I'm SMARTER than you are, and you're going the way I WANT you to go!' A woman should always feel her POWER over a man or a car—or she's lost! That 's what is called "woman's gentle influence!"

* * *

"Yes?" said Mrs. Green, icily. "Well, you just try that 'gentle influence' and psychic control on a big brute of a machine that doesn't KNOW that you've got a license to own it and run it and boss it. When a woman has worked for a month preparing herself to take a test for an automobile license and has put through a hectic half hour GETTING it, she has plenty of respect for the law—and the license!"

* * *

"Exactly!" agreed Mrs. Divot. "That's just my point! And if every young man and woman had to prove himself or herself qualified to get a MARRIAGE license, perhaps they would regard it as 'just a scrap of paper'—and there would be fewer matrimonial wrecks. But I know a lot of little cuties who would never pass the test!"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A "Return Party"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We are a club of five girls, and we are in doubt as to whether or not it is proper to give a cafe party. The suggestion was made for this kind of a party by one of the members. The question is—is it proper for girls to invite escorts to a cafe party, with expenses defrayed by the club? ROSE.

TO ME this sounds like a most unattractive and unmannerly way for a girls' club to entertain. Don't do it, please. There are so many other attractive ways of giving this kind of "return party" that you and the other members should think of another kind of party.

No Present This Year

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Since last Christmas a friend of mine has been married. We were in the habit of giving each other presents each year, and I think now that he is married that it would be proper to give both him and his wife presents. Kindly tell me if this is proper, and what I should do? E. K.

IT WOULD be far better form for you not to send a Christmas present, but, instead, to send a card to him and his wife. Be sure to address it to both!

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Regard Teaching of Preventive Hygiene

LONG ago the Greeks brought the science and art of health building to its highest perfection. But with the evidence of civilization in the case of both Greeks and Romans, luxury and self-indulgence brought vices which caused the downfall of those nations.

DR. COPELAND

It is remarkable at what high level hygiene was in those times. In Greece, prenatal care of the mother was practiced with the utmost diligence. The diet and general physical culture of girls were regulated with the view of preparing them for motherhood. Convinced of the great value of right food, fresh air and exercise, both Greeks and Romans regulated and controlled the food supplies of their nations. Their prowess at games and physical culture has never been surpassed.

We may emulate the ancient Greeks not only in beauty of form and radiant health, but in physical and mental power. Physical and mental development go hand in hand. The Greeks knew the value of sun and air baths, and their style of dress allowed the free circulation of air around their bodies.

We might heed the animal world in right living. When an animal is sick, it knows instinctively how to treat itself. It abstains from food, rests, takes water or sand baths, its own kind of massage, and eats healing herbs and plants. Primitive man learned much from animals in all these matters. Right food, air and sunshine mean everything in developing health, and the animals knew it before we did.

Today we have public health centers for the study and prevention of diseases. For many, many years our doctors and hospitals have concentrated on cures for disease, but in these modern days there are great movements for disease prevention and for health maintenance.

In every great city are medical schools and laboratories where important research into every known disease is going on every day. Preventive measures for the public good are being recommended constantly. In every section of the country are great hospitals and clinics where preventive health work is carried on, open to people in every walk of life.

But, after all, what do all these activities amount to unless we apply what is learned? Unless practical use is made of the new knowledge we might as well be living 10 centuries ago.

We should be more interested in a discovery for the prevention of some common disease than in something relating to aviation. It means much more to each one of us personally. I fear, however, that many persons are utterly unconcerned over health discoveries.

But you should see them when they are sick! They just beg for something to stop the pain.

Important as all the curative things are, far more important is it to know how to escape disease. It pays to give heed to everything having to do with the prevention of sickness.

Horoscopes

Sunday, December 15

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds augury for flourishing conditions for church and charity, with the mystical or spiritual activities thriving. Romantic attachments may be intriguing. Beware of subtlety.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a lively and prosperous year especially in the launching of new projects yet a degree of precaution is enjoined against treachery. Personal affairs should prove thrilling if not sensational. Change and travel are foreseen.

A child born on this day should be versatile and efficient and is likely to rise above its station in life, possibly through diplomacy or conspiracy.

Monday, December 16

MONDAY'S astrological forecast, according to the lunar configurations, holds no promise for employment, with a general state of agitation and disturbance. These may be most advantageously met by preserving an attitude of self-control and composure.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which calmness and firm self-control may overcome many exacting conditions and disturbances as well as perils to employment.

A child born on this day may be aggressive and courageous, but should be trained and disciplined in calm and controlled demeanor if it would win success.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF PENNA

GARDNER SIGN COMPANY, a Delaware Corp., Plaintiff, vs. CLAUDE NEON LIGHTS, INC., a New York Corp., and ALPHA-CLAUDE NEON CORP., a Pennsylvania Corp., Defendants. No. 2389 IN EQUITY

OPINION.

Schoonmaker, J.:

The plaintiff has filed an ancillary bill of complaint in this case asking the court to enjoin the defendant from representing to the public, either in writing or in public prints or orally, that it has a monopoly on the Neon tube business, that the patent covers practically all Neon signs, and that the defendant be required to send out retraction letters to persons to whom letters have heretofore been sent by them; asking for a preliminary injunction pending the final relief; and asking further that the preliminary injunction granted in case at Equity No. 2260 at the suit of Claude Neon Lights, Inc., vs. the Gardner Sign Company be dissolved.

On filing the ancillary bill of complaint, a temporary restraining order was issued and the case then came to be heard on the motion of the Gardner Sign Company for a preliminary injunction. The Claude Neon Lights, Inc., et al, the plaintiff in the original suit at No. 2260 In Equity, obtained a preliminary injunction covering claim 1 of the patent for a luminescent tube, provided with an electrode having an area of 1.5 decimeters per ampere.

After receiving this preliminary injunction order, the defendants, through their attorneys, in Pittsburgh, or in New York, sent out circular letters to customers of the Gardner Sign Company, and caused to be published in the public press of Pittsburgh the full page advertisement, all as set out in the ancillary bill of complaint. In addition to that, Fred D. Pryde, a salesman employed by the Alpha Neon Lights, Inc., called upon one W. Levinson, a customer of the Gardner Sign Company, calling attention to the injunction in this court against the Gardner Sign Company, asking him to cancel his contract with the Gardner Sign Company, and offering to him credit for the amount paid by the Gardner Sign Company on the purchase of a new sign from the Alpha-Claude Neon Corporation.

Under these circumstances, we conclude that the plaintiff in this ancillary suit is entitled to preliminary injunction as prayed for. In granting a preliminary injunction in the original suit we only intended to restrain until final hearing on the original suit, what was apparently an infringement of the plaintiff's patent as decided by the courts of other districts and circuits. However, we undertook to give no final or conclusive judgment on the subject of infringement. In fact, it appeared from the affidavits of the Gardner Sign Company that it had discontinued use of the alleged infringing structures several months prior to the hearing on the preliminary injunction. But we nevertheless issued the preliminary injunction on the theory that no harm would come to the defendant unless it should actually continue the use of the alleged infringing structures. This preliminary injunction decree gave the plaintiff no right to harass the customers of the Gardner Sign Company, nor to claim a decisive result in its original patent suit. As we view it, the proper place to try a patent suit is in the courts, not in the newspapers nor in circular letters. We undertook only to protect the rights of the plaintiff in its patent pending a determination on the issues involved in the original patent suit. We will not dissolve this preliminary injunction, for we shall endeavor to preserve the status quo pending the termination of the controversy on the merits between the two parties in the original suit. With that in view, we will issue the preliminary injunction prayed for in this ancillary bill, restraining the defendants from sending out any further letters or circulars as set out in the ancillary bill, and place upon them the burden of sending a copy of this preliminary injunction order to all persons to whom they sent the original circulars, and publishing a copy of this decree in the newspapers that contained their previous advertisements.

An order for a preliminary injunction in accordance with this opinion may be submitted.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

DECREE OF COURT

Now, December 5, 1929, this cause having come on to be heard on motion for preliminary injunction, and the same having been duly considered by the court, and it appearing that this court heretofore in an action by Claude Neon Lights, Inc., and Alpha-Claude Neon Corporation against the Gardner Sign Company, et al, involving an alleged infringement of the letters patent No. 1,125,476, issued a preliminary injunction against the Gardner Sign Company restraining the defendants from using or selling a luminescent tube provided with an electrode having an area of 1.5 decimeters per ampere; and it further appearing to the court that defendants in the instant case sent out certain circular letters to customers of the plaintiff in this action and published full page advertisements in the newspapers in the City of Pittsburgh from which it might be inferred that the Claude Neon Lights, Inc., and the Alpha-Claude Neon Corporation had successfully sustained their patent and the infringement of it by the Gardner Sign Company in the aforesaid action, whereas the facts were that this court merely issued a preliminary injunction to restrain the Gardner Sign Company from using or selling luminescent tubes provided with an electrode having an area of 1.5 decimeters per ampere, or over, pending final decision by this court upon the merits of the controversy between the parties; and it further appearing that said controversy has not yet been heard and disposed of by this court and that the Claude Neon Lights, Inc., and the Alpha-Claude Neon Corporation are making undue commercial use of the preliminary injunction aforesaid

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered, adjudged, and decreed that a writ of injunction be issued forthwith out of and under the seal of this court which shall be effective until the final decision in the suit involving the alleged infringement of said patent No. 1,125,476, directed to the said defendants, Claude Neon Lights, Inc., and Alpha-Claude Neon Corporation, and each of them, enjoining and restraining the said defendants, their officers, attorneys, agents, dealers, servants, representatives, workmen, clerks, employees, salesmen, and all others acting by or under their direction or authority,—

(1) From representing that they have a monopoly on the Neon tube business, or that Patent No. 1,125,476 covers any and every type of luminescent tubes, or in any way interfering with or making representations to customers of the Gardner Sign Company which will hinder or delay the Gardner Sign Company in the collection of moneys due it on signs sold or to be sold by it; (2) From competing with the Gardner Sign Company by threatening its customers with patent litigation.

(3) From sending out any statements or letters of the character of Exhibits A and B attached to the plaintiff's ancillary bill of complaint in this case;

(4) From publishing any further advertisement referring to or quoting the preliminary injunction heretofore granted by this court at the suit of Claude Neon Lights, Inc., against the Gardner Sign Company, et al.

It is further ordered that the Claude Neon Lights, Inc., and the Alpha-Claude Neon Corporation shall, within five days from the date of this decree, publish in the same newspapers which published their original advertisements containing the copy of the preliminary injunction in the infringement suit, a copy of the opinion of the court in this case, and of this decree, said publications to occupy the same space as was given to the original advertisements; and further that they mail to each person, firm, or corporation to whom letters of the character of Exhibits A and B were mailed, a copy of the opinion of the court in the instant case, and of this decree, accompanying the same with a letter signed by them or their counsel on the form filed with this decree.

And further, on or before six days from the date of this decree, they shall submit proof of their compliance with this order by affidavit of one of their executive officers filed in this case, which shall be accompanied by copies of the newspapers publishing said opinion and this decree, and a list of the persons to whom copies of the same were mailed.

Per Curiam.

We publish the foregoing opinion and decree of the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania pursuant to its order made December 5, 1929.

WOMAN TO TALK IN MOONEY CASE

BELLAIRE, O., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Dora E. Monroe, of Shadyside, near here, will leave for New York next Tuesday to tell her story of the San Francisco bombing of 1916, to the national Mooney-Billings defense committee, she said.

Mrs. Monroe declared that her brother, Louis Smith, who died in 1922 in Cleveland, had confessed to her that he threw the bomb for which Tom Mooney is serving a life term in a California prison.

She said that she had asked Frank O. Stevens, inmate of the National Military Home at Dayton, who first told of the Smith confession, to accompany her to New York. Mrs. Monroe has signed an affidavit recounting her brother's confession to her.

MINERS' STRIKE NEAR END

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Prospects for a quick truce in the miners' strike effecting a half-dozen coal mines and about 3,500 miners in this district appeared rosier today with nearly 100 accused leaders of the striking miners either in jail or held under bond.

Officials of the United Mine Workers' Union, opposing the walkout called last Monday by the National Miners' Union, rival organization, said they felt satisfied the surrounding coal fields would be back to normal by Monday, with probably two or three of the mines involved expected to resume operations to some extent today.

Walter Winchell
On Broadway

NEW YORK, Dec 14.

Colyuming With a Camera

"DEAR MR. WINCHELL," writes Nellie G. Williams, of No. 4304 N. Campbell Ave., Chicago, "usually I enjoy your column in the Chicago American, but I feel that any woman should certainly voice her protest when you go too far . . . I didn't think so much about it when you limited your observations about 'blessed events' to the people of whom I know nothing. On the other hand, our friends, the Lindberghs, have stepped into the limelight when they were doing a service to humanity for our dear U. S. A. You are not able to understand how sweet and sacred a thing this is to a modest, lovely woman like Mrs. Lindbergh. Why don't you think twice before you expose an expectant mother to this prying of the curious? Will you blase moderns leave nothing sacred?"

TO KEEP YOUNG

"MY YOUNG FRIEND," writes Mrs. Phoebe Elliott, of New Harmony, Indiana, "I say young for no one could write like you do without a youthful spirit and happy heart. It is the liberty of age I have taken in addressing you. Yes, I am an old lady, 75 years old, and live alone. I want to tell you how much I enjoy your 'On Broadway' in the Evansville Courier. I like the cheerful, gossipy tone. I enjoy learning of the 'blessed events' that are casting their shadows before them. I have always envied grandmothers, and this means that someone will be a grandmother. I lost my two dear sons in their young manhood. Perhaps that is why I love young people so.

"This town I live in is historic, but alas! It is now an ossified town. The entire population would turn out to see a brass band or a baby. Full of old maids and widows, lovelorn ladies. However, if you ever wander through Southern Indiana, down here near the Wabash, you'll find my latchstring outside. I live in an old pioneer house more than 100 years old."

PLEA FOR RICHMAN

"DEAR MR. WINCHELL: I read your column daily, as all the rest of humanity does, I suppose, and agree with most of your views except one. That one, you wrote about in your article concerning one Mr. Harry Richman. I agree that what you said about Mr. Richman would not in the least change anyone who really liked Harry, but to the average person who is so unfortunate as not to know and admire him, the slamming remarks you made about him certainly make you seem very small and childish, and would not exactly help him, either—so what was the use of it all?

"However, I might forgive you for this if, in the future, you will refrain from any more silly outbursts, possibly caused by a personal grudge and, as Mr. Richman himself says (of course I wrote and told him about you, enclosing the clipping, and received a fine letter in answer), jealousy, and have plenty of news about him, at least, if you can't compliment him on his success.

"I imagine that you wouldn't mention this or any other similar letters of protest about the same thing, in your column, because you wouldn't want to have anyone think that anyone else's opinion than your own is worth anything. Questioningly yours, An Indignant Harry Richman Admirer."

JUST SAY SOMETHING

"WELL, well. Personally, I don't care what you say about me so long as you say something. I wrote that poem in Zit's with a rhyme for 'uncouth' but it came out wrong. Oh yes, I came back from Sing Sing and the boys up there all seem impatient. They've got the little green room all prepared for you and certainly are putting themselves to great pains to see that you are comfy when you're finally found out. It still beats me how you manage to keep out. I know enough about you to hang you.—George Beck."

"FRANKLY," passionately writes Louis Strunsky, "you make me sick. When you say that Grover Whalen never had an offer to advertise his fine teeth it shows how much you know. I made him one, but he refused, offering him $1,000. Winchell Smith is not the richest playwright in the world. Have you ever heard of the French playwright, Andre Pascal? He's worth a billion dollars. As your knowledge of playwrights and plays is probably very meager, let me inform you that the gentleman's name is Baron Rothschild.

"Outside of poor English, false information, scandal which only harms people, stale, old jokes and cheap Broadway gags, your column is great, but I never read it."

"DEAR WALTER," writes "Mod-One," "show business being what it is just now, you might be interested in knowing that a gentleman by the name of Safian who is currently casting a show offered an actress whom he is considering for the lead the following: $40 per week and 1 per cent of the gross above $6,000!"

EVELYN GETS CREDIT

"WALTER! Here's a gag which may or may not be new. A herb was walking down the street in some fantastic get-up and his friend stopped him. "What are you doing all dressed up like that?" asks the friend. "I'm going duck-hunting!" says the masquerade boy. With the friend incredulous, they finally took a train to Long Island and went into the fields. A covey of ducks went sweeping by. "Nu, shoot, shoot!" urged the friend. "Ach, dot's too easy," the shark objected, "anybody could shoot one out of so many." They walked on. Now a lone wild duck soared high. "So, what?" shrieked the friend, "so why don't you shoot that one?" "Take it easy," retorted the hunter snippily; then took slow careful aim and shot. To the friend's utter amazement, the bird came down. He rushed over to where it lay and kicked it. It quivered in death. "Yeh, it's really dead," mused the friend—and then, in a prompt reaction of high scepticism: "Ah, but it would have died from the fall, anyway!"

Me it amuses no end, and nobody I know seems to have heard it before. So, doilink, if you think it's either funny or new, will you be a good guy and credit it to Evelyn Hoey, of "50 Million Frenchmen?" I need scarcely remind you that she's one of your favorite warblers and one of my favorite personal accounts.—Emanuel Eisenberg."

ON THE Q. T.

"SIR: Of course there is some entertainment in your stuff, particularly for me on days when you gather the trivia of the town. Not that I know many of the citizens of whom you write, but somehow there is a tang to it all, and I feel that I am informed. However, I do not envy you and whatever distinction goes with your job. I suppose you are fawned over by the darlings in the cabarets and yessed to death by the Broadway lice, but let me warn you, sir, too much power never did anyone any good. They are gunning for you, Winchell, and I thought you ought to know it. The latest rumor is that you soon will be named as co-respondent by a well-known restaurateur.—J. H. H."

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d" to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

COOK-COOS by Ted Cook

Congressman Bloom declares that nearly all Senators and Representatives vote diametrically opposite of their personal convictions in order to conform to what they believe is the attitude of their constituents.

Thus justifying a change in the copy books, to read: "Honesty is the worst policy."

* * *

Our national credo, too, might be revised to conform by substituting the idea that every man is entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of hypocrisy.

As constituents generally have the idea that their Senators and Representatives always vote wrong, Bloom's revelation is encouraging. It shows that the country is potentially sane.

NIFTY MORAL OF "PALACES OF SIN" IS REVEALED!

Synopsis—The author has sought to inform Ruth Willmore's uncle of her disgraceful conduct, but gets insulted for his pains and a threat of horsewhipping if he again speaks to the Michigan Beauty.

"IT was useless to argue the case, therefore I turned my back on Ruth's uncle, and the last thing I heard him say was, 'You rich blackguard!'

"Reader, this is the outcome of Washington Society, and that is the treatment I received for endeavoring to snatch dear, sweet Ruth Willmore from the very jaws of shame. I remained in Washington for several months afterward, and watched the course of this country girl, and exactly five months from the day she arrived in that city of 'shame and sharks' poor Ruth one bright morning in May ended her career by cutting her poor throat from ear to ear with an ivory handled knife which belonged to a manicuring set this fiend 'Alonzo' had given her.

"Why did she do it?"

"Oh, Reader, ask that dear old Aunt and Uncle who still live in the great State of New York and their answer will be Beware! Beware!"

Don't Increase Rates, Taxpayers Tell Council

If Council heeds the protests of taxpayers who appeared before it in a budget hearing, there will be no increase in the city tax rate. More than 200 determined citizens, representing large and small properties, including representatives of the Building Owners and Managers Association, Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, League of Women Voters, Chamber of Commerce, League of Building and Loan Associations, Apartment House Owners, etc., told Council that taxation now had reached the limit.

Among points raised were that property tax is higher here than in other large cities; that property already is bearing a burden that would make further taxation a means of reducing income, hence, reducing market value; that the city is wasteful in the expenditure of its money, especially in the maintenance of buildings, the City-County Building, for instance, costing 81.7 cents per square foot for operation, while private buildings are better maintained as low as 53.6 cents per square foot.

Many other matters were commented upon, all of which can be centered in the claim that the city does not get full value for its dollars because political appointees are more concerned in giving political service than they are in serving the city.

Mayor Kline, who, as head of the city, should be interested in its financial affairs, was not present, although he had been invited. No reason for his absence was presented.

Councilmen now know very clearly the sentiment of the people regarding fixing the budget, estimates for which are indicated to require an increase in taxation of a mill and a half or two mills. Under the circumstances, they are bound to cut these estimates wherever possible. Every dollar that can be taken out without seriously impairing the city's operative machinery must be saved for the people out of whose pockets the dollars come.

There must be no increase in the tax levy unless it is absolutely imperative!

A Lesson in Farm Relief

What Do You Think These Sugar Farmers Need?

A SUGAR MILL IN THE PHILIPPINES.

This is a one-ox-one-man sugar mill in the Philippine Islands. The man feeds the sugar cane into the grinding machine by hand. It is ground up by one-ox power.

Our Filipino friends have two desires. They wish first of all to be independent of the United States. That would be a good idea except for several reasons.

Reason number one is that they wouldn't know how to run their own country.

Reason number two is that they wouldn't be ALLOWED to run it, because if they set up for themselves, Japan or some other Asiatic power would step in and take charge.

Reason number three is that this country rescued them from the tyranny, superstition and ignorance of Spanish government, spending millions of American money on public schools, roads and other things.

While the politicians in the Philippines want freedom, the business men in the Philippines want free access to American markets. They say it is an outrage to put any tariff on sugar coming from the Philippines into America. They accuse American sugar growers who demand protection of "crushing the people of the Philippines as producers and the people of the United States as consumers."

Congress and American sugar producers will probably attend to the tariff matter. They usually do.

Time will attend to the question of the Philippines and their independence. Since this country can afford the cost, it is well to keep a good landing place across the Pacific.

The chief value of this picture for the United States is its lesson in regard to much discussed "farm relief."

This Filipino sugar farmer believes that all he needs is a subsidy, a bonus, a "debenture" scheme from his government, plus the kind of tariff he wants and plus a few other things.

Any high school boy knows at a glance that what this Filipino farmer really needs is BETTER MACHINERY, better organization, an entirely different way of turning sugar cane into sugar.

And what is true of this farmer in the Philippines is true of millions of American farmers in this country. They haven't the right machinery, they lack organization. Their industry is managed as primitively, almost, as it was in the Stone Age.

The Filipinos should have steel plows instead of a piece of wood hardened in the fire. They should have tractors instead of oxen. They, and American farmers, work as isolated individuals, walking unnecessary miles a day, trying to handle more land than one man can handle economically or profitably.

What our farmers need is exactly what INDUSTRY needed some time ago and GOT, that is to say, REORGANIZATION, GREATER EFFICIENCY, LESS WASTE, MASS PRODUCTION.

Make It Illegal

Good Way to Arouse Interest

Government authorities have prohibited "All Quiet on the Western Front" from being placed in Czechoslovak military libraries. J. S. Machar, foremost Czech poet, is taking advantage of the situation by urging everybody to read Remarque's book.

Why wouldn't it be a good idea, in this country, to make it illegal for motorists to read the traffic ordinances? Something ought to be done to stimulate interest.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The Law's the Law

THE law courts have decided that there is no happy medium between zero and the Eighteenth Amendment.

"Bugs" Baer

The boys who do their Christmas shopping off the boat are just as guilty as the roving backs in the all-alcoholic team.

Although the ulna and fibula of bone-dry prohibition have been broken in compound felonies, we must respect the pieces.

For 10 years we have been getting away with whispering in the third degree. Our motto was the happy stencil that the bird who sold it could feather his own nest and we would suck the contraband eggs.

Only the middle man was guilty and the ultimate consumer was just as innocent as a bee on a paper flower.

We were present at the transaction but we couldn't be arrested. Thereby being in the same condition of immunity as Jesse James' hoss.

But a southern judge with no eye for color, curves or landscaping, has decided that caveat emptor means what it says, even if you ain't that educated.

With one strike of his gavel he pulls a blanket indictment up around our ears and snuggles us away for eternity.

The man who buys it shall suffer with the guilty. Even more. For the man who sells it doesn't have to drink it.

And the jury, those 12 jewels in a setting of rough pine, will be instructed to toss the full weight of the law for the official Olympic distance.

No more will a trial by jury be a night-club in the daytime.

We believe that the southern judge is correct in his interpretation of laughing amendments. The sins you do, two by two, you shall pay for, quart by quart.

We studied the Constitution carefully in the garages of education in this land. But we always thought we were outside the law because we left school before the Eighteenth Amendment was crocheted by one of our knitting assemblies.

There were many sequestered filling stations where a reserve hip tank can be filled. But, before you load up on your fermented mileage, remember that you are an accessory before, after and during the fact.

The law states that we are all tarred with the same brush.

Which won't stop a lot of malefactors from accumulating three coats of paint.

It's all work and no play with lots of would-be dramatists.

The same food that stupefies the brain by day keeps it unduly active at night.

WHINERS AND WINNERS

By Herbert Kaufman

A CORRESPONDENT in Miami, Fla., suffering neither from the handicaps of illiteracy nor physical disability, thinks "it a disgrace to humanity that men who are willing to work, have to add to their many other fears the fear of poverty."

"It is quite obvious," he continues, in part, "that the multitude will remain just as they are.

"Why not attempt to remove this world-wide condition by advocating a more just distribution of wealth and the development of natural talents, instead of forcing a man to work at something just to keep body and soul together?"

Helen Keller, for one, might answer the gentleman on the score of "developing natural talents," and contrast her ABYSMAL poverty with his affluent estate. She COULD show him the bricks she has made without the straws of sight, speech or hearing, and suggest that people who aren't deaf, dumb and blind present a very sorry picture when they protest of lack of opportunity to "develop talents," while she, with FORTY per cent of normal operating capital, has qualified for a university degree, a lecture career and the discussion of esoteric theology.

HER views on the relative merits of Swedenborg's doctrines and Bahaism indicate that doggedness CAN make hay WITHOUT sunshine, and leave every able-bodied quitter and squealer on earth without a VALID alibi for failure to perform.

The gentleman also blames society for the crime of permitting some to have millions while others have merely grouches.

Analyzing the higher brackets of the nation's income tax payments, one discovers that practically every super-successful contemporary began life with bare hands, negligible schooling and a constitutionally issued license to go as far as he pleased.

For example, the founder of the A. & P. chain hadn't a single advantage over any OTHER grocer's clerk of his time. But, because he HADN'T an inferiority complex and because he WASN'T a dog-in the manger, the little shop in which he invested a few years' modest savings, has expanded into a system with fifteen thousand branches and annual sales of one billion dollars.

DAVID MAY—master merchant, with six great department stores as monuments to his industry—once an 11-year-old immigrant unable to speak a word of English, a friendless waif in alien land—assuredly had no prospects this critic of social justice doesn't enjoy.

Nor had Marshall Field, nor Adam Gimbel, nor John Wanamaker. They simply TRIED harder, used the wits that God gave them and served CONFIDENCE instead of ENVY.

The Chrysler factories and skyscrapers were erected with a day laborer's tools. Henry Ford hadn't a helping hand but his OWN.

Julius Rosenwald's father MAY have been plutocratic enough to own a horse and buggy, but J. C. Penney's folk couldn't afford even to TINPLATE the spoon on which his ambitions teethed.

AND if democracy requires exhibits to vindicate its impartiality, a certain Herbert Hoover, quondam orphan, destitute of influence, assets and apparent horizon—thrown upon his own resources at the age of 10—testifies from the White House that America STILL keeps faith with the tradition that no whole-souled effort shall ever be prejudiced by initial penuary, obscurity or deprivation.

"Go to the ant, thou sluggard." Your indictment is dismissed for lack of supporting evidence.

Nothing is holding YOU down except a warped attitude of mind. You're not looking for a chance, but for the privilege of shaking the plum trees that other men have planted and cultivated.

Nobody with a tin cup in his brain is SERIOUSLY bent upon BETTERING his circumstances.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

A NOBLE phrase came out of the late war—"THEY SHALL NOT PASS!"

That phrase lifted men out of demoralization—tightened their strength—shot them through to victory.

IT CAN DO THE SAME FOR YOU.

Your life is as truly a battlefield as was Verdun, but you face infinitely more dangerous foes than the Allies ever faced. Their foes were men and bullets and gas. Deadly as was that combination, it cannot compare with the viciousness of your enemy—THE ENEMY OF YOUR OWN THOUGHTS.

The most malicious thing you will ever have to face in life lies within you—in your own mind—in the thoughts you allow to enter and generate in your own mind. You don't like to acknowledge that. You like to blame your bad luck on outward circumstances. But actually the cause for most of your grief lies within yourself—LIES IN THE THOUGHTS YOU FEED YOURSELF.

Cowardly thoughts...conceited thoughts...suspicious, vindictive, hateful thoughts . . . thoughts of vain grief and vain remorse . . . jealous and envious thoughts . . . self pitying thoughts...and, above all, SELF EXCUSING thoughts—these are the real forces which undermine and frustrate your life.

"But I can't help thinking," you say.

Perhaps not . . . BUT YOU CAN HELP WHAT YOU THINK.

You have as much ability to decide what you will think as you have to decide what you will eat or wear or do.

You can definitely say—"I WILL think this . . . I WILL NOT think that." And, having said this, you can do it. That power to control thought is as truly given to you as the power to open or shut your mouth, sit or stand, run or walk.

YOU CAN SHUT YOUR MIND AS SURELY AS YOU CAN SHUT A DOOR. AND YOU SHOULD SHUT YOUR MIND TO MANY THOUGHTS WHICH YOU NOW ALLOW TO ENTER.

Take a cross section of the thoughts which are filling your mind at present. Look them over honestly, courageously. Decide which thoughts are doing you good . . . which aren't. That will be hard, for some of our most destructive thoughts had a noble beginning. The grief over a dead child . . . remorse over past folly . . . these thoughts were sacred at their source. BUT THEY CAN CLOG LIFE . . . THEY CAN WASTE AND DEMORALIZE YOU . . . AS SURELY AS THE MOST EVIL SPECULATION.

Put them away from you. SAY—"THEY SHALL NOT PASS!"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

THERE was a dumbbell of a boy that was going to a private school, and the teachers were all trying to get rid of him. But the boy's dad had some pull with the management. One day the boy come in grinning and says to one of the teachers, "Well, it ought to be easier for me to get my lessons now. Dad bought me an encyclopedia that's got all the knowledge in the world in it. You can find out anything by looking it up in that book."

"Well," says the teacher, "suppose you start in by looking up why your dad sends you here to torment us every day."

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

HALF a century ago, nothing was known of the functions of these ductless glands. They were merely puzzles for the anatomist.

Today we know that, including the thyroid and the pituitary body, there are four, perhaps five definite glands in our bodies entirely concerned with this business of internal secretion, and two of these five, the adrenal and the pituitary, have a double function and are formed of two distinct parts, each producing one or more quite different hormones. Besides these definite anatomical structures we have named there are four or five organs which have other functions as well, but which also contain masses of internally secreting cells.

Altogether we know now of more than a dozen separate hormones each with its own special task within the body.

H. G. Wells

Of these hormones, two—secretin and adrenin—co-operate with the nervous system in bringing about rapid variations in the state of our organs in adjustment to the fluctuating conditions to which we are exposed. We have already described this action in the second chapter.

Other internal secretions have exclusively chemical functions. The pancreas, for example, has islets of endocrine cells scattered among its digestive tubules, and their secretion, insulin, has a very important function in controlling the handling of sugar by our tissues.

The parathyroid glands are small bodies lying at the sides of the thyroid, and until a few decades ago were regarded as mere appendages of that organ. Now we know that they produce a secretion which regulates the amount of lime in the blood. When this is insufficient, defects appear in the bones and teeth; when it is gravely deficient, the patient has an attack of muscle-spasms or tetany. In the last few years a way has been found to prepare extracts of the parathyroids, whose injection will relieve the symptoms of this disorder.

The endocrine functions of various other organs of the body have still to be explored. The thymus, for example, is a large pink gland lying over the heart in very young children, but dwindling and disappearing before the age of discretion is reached. Presumably it has an influence on early development.

It should not be thought that the different ductless glands exert their functions in isolation and independently of each other.

Often a number of glands affect the same process in various ways—in the case of sugar metabolism, for example, the thyroid stimulates oxidation of sugar, the post-pituitary favors the conversion of sugar to fat, the adrenal medulla brings about liberation of sugar from the liver, and the pancreas controls the taking-up of sugar by the tissues from the blood—and thus the various secretions may interfere, antagonizing or reinforcing each other's activities.

Again, the various ductless glands may influence each other directly. There is an ultimate interrelation between the adrenals and the thyroid, for feeding dogs on adrenal cortex causes their thyroids to store more thyroxin.

Like other tissues, the ductless glands are sensitive to changes in the composition of the blood, and thus, in a variety of ways, they can interact.

Manifestly, our present knowledge of internal secretions is still very incomplete and a good deal of nonsense—has been written about it. Nevertheless, it is clear that the actions of these glands are of the profoundest physiological importance.

BOOK TWO.
THE VARIOUS FORMS OF LIFE.
Chapter One.
VERTEBRATA.

THE VERTEBRATE PHYLUM.
Section 1. Classification.

WE have now given an outline of existing knowledge about the structure and working of that most familiar form of living thing, a human being, the species Man, Homo sapiens.

In relations of conflict or tolerance with these species there are a very great number of other species, more or less numerous and more or less similar, beasts, birds and fishes. We have already given some transitory glances at one of these species, Mus musculus, the house mouse.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Manhattan memories: Burns Mantle landing from Chicago with a football crop of hair . . . The 15-cent whisky sours at the old Astor House . . . Grantland Rice's Tennessee accent . . . The midget cigaret seller with the roaring voice at the Campus Restaurant.

Earl and Marcelle Carroll's tiny two-room flat . . . Lillian Lorraine swinging out over the New York roof audiences. . . . Max Marx, the Broadway tailor. . . . The sports who tried to be first at McGowan's Pass Tavern in a sleigh for the magnum of champagne prizes. . . . Nat Goodwin's table at the Claridge.

The all-night stay-outs who haunted Joel's. . . . Mae Murray dancing at Sans Souci. . . . Lew Cody's apartment at Murray's. . . . Mrs. McFadden's boarding house on West 72d street where guests "dressed" for dinner. . . . The newspaper crowd at the Marlborough Hotel bar.

Roy Howard "doing Broadway" for the Scripps-McRae League. . . . Nigger Mike Salter's in Chinatown. . . . Visiting ball players in front of the Ansonia. . . . The Monday afternoon audience at Hammerstein's. . . . James Gordon Bennett sneaking in from Europe to fire the Herald staff.

The sensation when the Ritz opened and permitted ladies to smoke in the big dining room. . . . Tom Healy's on Saturday night. . . . James Montgomery Flagg's apartment on West 67th street. . . . Pat and Bob Brinkerhoff's sparerib dinners. . . . Lillian Russell's big black velvet picture hat.

Kathleen and Charles G. Norris' flat—walk up three flights, ring Kernochan's bell. . . . Clara Briggs and Harry Stanton clowning at the weekly poker games. . . . And Dr. George Dorsey's picturesque language. . . . Charlie Somerville startling Park Row with a gold headed cane.

Eddie Dunn's sky-rocket vests. . . . Harris Merton Lyon's devastating cynicism. . . . James Murray Allison's city slicker mustache. . . . Rube Goldberg's act in vaudeville. . . . Si Goodfriend, the press agent with a silk hat. . . . The Sunday night theatrical crowd at Browne's chop house.

Life isn't quite tough enough it appears. A new cafe is abolishing hat checking by placing a 25 cent service charge on every dinner check. * * *

No matter what the service charge, so long as a pretty girl extends her hand palm up, America will gallantly tip and grouch about it afterward. * * *

A new how-do-do is being tried out by ladies of the evening. When they step out of the taxi at home, they suddenly discover they have lost a pocketbook or fur piece. The gentlemanly sucker makes the futile search and shakes his head. Comes the storm! The very pliable lady grows taut and there is the inference she will disturb the still night with a shrill scream that will bring a gendarme. So a settlement is made for a couple of hundred dollars or so and the bewildered gentleman goes his way. * * *

Broadway's credo as hallelujahed in a musical comedy: "A girl is no stronger than her weakest moment." * * *

There is always arresting drama around New York at dawn. The other morning I looked out a bedroom window as a pink was flushing the sky. Diagonally across the street a big limousine purred at the curb. A gentleman inside was furtively scanning the upper windows. After awhile a slim hand protruded and motioned the car back and it silently edged off a short space. Soon a veiled lady came tip toeing out of the front door and into the car. And it shot away. * * *

"After all," writes someone, "the Old Cove oyster can wasn't such a bad place to put the savings."

Nor was it such a good place. We remember the fellow in our town who hid his in an old sock behind a joist. The rats had a fine feast.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

WHY worry over the facial blemishes you may have?

You cannot change the face that was given you.

Unhappiness can do more to make you unattractive than freckles or a muddy complexion. Worrying over your unattractiveness can make you most unpopular.

Devote your efforts and your thought to making yourself attractive in other ways than mere facial beauty.

To be interesting because of the ideas you evolve, the studying you have done, the kindness you are known to extend, is worth while.

Perhaps you have the faculty of cheering others.

You may be a sympathetic listener or a brilliant conversationalist.

You may give sacrificing service when a good Samaritan is needed.

There are many ways to make up for lack of beauty of face or form.

But none of these things will strike a responsive chord unless you are sincerely true.

To do this you must forget your own grievances.

You must not have personal reward as the object of your kindness.

Do good because you really want to help others.
